The New Generation

The new generation — a generation of Aggies to come through A&M to know the feeling of victory and to know the feeling of change.

Looking back on 1986 the feeling of a new era comes to mind. Girls were not only let into the Aggie Band for the first time in the history of the school but the GSSO and fraternities became recognized organizations. Many resisted this change and still do, fearing A&M's spirit would be forever lost. But, as the year unfolded the Spirit of Aggieland proved to still be as strong as ever.

For the first time in countless number of years the Aggie fan knew the feeling of sweet victory not only on the men's football field but, on the basketball court and baseball diamond as well with a Southwest Conference title in each. The Aggie football team also went on to win the Cotton Bowl in a victory over Auburn. The hopes for a new winning generation run high among Aggie sports fans.

As the years go by and these and other changes become just another part of A&M, many will look back on 1986 as the year of change and realize that the Aggie spirit may have to adapt to the times but, the true meaning of it never dies.

1985 SEASON SWC CHAMPS

Cotton

Texas Aggies make their first cotton bowl appearance in 18 seasons

"Cot-ton . . . cot-ton . . . cotton . . . !" began the season's first yell practice, but little did the Texas Aggies know that their annual hopes would be fulfilled. In spite of the team's starting loss at the hands of Alabama or their upset against Baylor, the rough-tough Texas A&M football team encored in Dallas for the 1986 Cotton Bowl.

Bonfire had fallen after midnight, foretelling an Aggie victory when the Aggies encountered Texas. This meeting was the showdown to determine who would carry the Southwest Conference title. On Thanksgiving Day, 77,607 eyewitnesses loaded the bleachers and temporary seats of Kyle Field. Forty-two years ago that day, the same teams met to determine the championship. The crowd also celebrated another 42nd event, the birthday of Texas A&M Athletic Director Jackie Sherrill.

Aggie devotees and standing 12th Man created a sea of white each time the Maroon scored. The towels just flew up "in gleeful celebration" wrote Dave Campbell in the Waco Tribune Herald, but not at all "in surrender!" Cotton balls flew everywhere — that is, if they were not dangling from the ears or fingers of many. The Aggies beat the Longhorns again with a 32 point margin, just to freshen the memory of the 32-point Aggie margin in last year's scrap with the Orange and White. The defeat sent Texas (and Bevo) away with their tails tucked under to play the Air Force Academy in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Two weeks after the t. u. game, something unusual happened on campus. The "Bowl facts" were that 8,000 tickets were available to students at $20 rather than $25 (a Sherrill-requested discount); the best tickets were endzone and 10-yardline seats; and FINALS were the following week. The latter must not have weighed too heavily on the minds of students as Camp Cotton was established in front of G. Rollie White Coliseum two days before tickets sales began.

Camp Cotton had almost all the comforts of home for the Twelfth Man. In front of the six ticket windows, campers set up sleeping bags, lawn chairs, tents, Christmas trees, B-B-Q grills and television sets. Video cassette recorders even played "Ghostbusters," "The Exterminator," or better, the A&M vs. Texas game. Footballs, volleyballs and frisbees flew overhead during the balmy afternoons; and by night, teddy bears, popcorn and blankets took precedent. When asked about the beer drinking going on, senior electrical engineer major Barry Meyer, replied, "No comment," while Kevin Sherman, junior landscape architecture major, admitted, "Well, the only studying I do is when I study the girls."

And by Tuesday morning, survivors were treated to coffee and donuts, which Jackie Sherrill had arranged to be delivered. In "thanks", one clever group humped it and yelled, "Beat the hell outta the Dallas Times Herald!," who earlier in the semester made allegations against particular team members. Still, whatever happened then or that night in front of G. Rollie White didn't matter anymore because the Aggies were going to Big D. Nothing could stop them — not even Bo

Aggie fans were out with their twelfth man towels in full force to help support the Texas A&M team against Auburn in the Cotton Bowl.

Jackson!

The charts ranked A&M 11th and Auburn 15th before the game; A&M also had a 9-2 record contrasting Auburn's 8-3. By the looks, we were on top, yet this Cotton Bowl appearance would be the first for A&M in 18 seasons, whereas Auburn had three straight wins in the Bowl. So it was predicted that A&M would fold under this big name team, who had Heisman Trophy winner Jackson on their side.

The 50th Anniversary Cotton Bowl Classic attracted 73,137 spectators that first day of the year, 1986. Students, alumni and fans took breaks from holiday seasons to be there. Both season conference winners were there to decide who had the talent and endurance to win. (A&M could do it!)

Kevin Murray, sophomore quarterback and runnerup to Jackson in MVP balloting, made 292 yards, a record high for the Bowl games, with 283 yards offensively. Anthony Toney and Rodger Vick handled the running game, since it was Sherrill's design to have fresh fullbacks at all times.

In the third quarter, with 13 minutes left on the clock, the Tigers were at A&M's seven yardline, with scoring in sight. A&M's defense pressed on Jackson, who three times tried to get pass the Maroon defense. Then, the Tigers got the fourth down just outside the two, but they failed when they attempted a touchdown. Later in the fourth quarter, the Agg stopped Jackson again on a crucial fourth down effort. There was no getting passed this Aggie team and the 12th Man knew it. With each anticipated score for either side, the stadium shook. Once again, towels flew up and engulfed more than half the stadium; Ag spirit overwhelmed. The SWC champs were champions again! People even humped it to a slightly different yell, "Give Jackie a raise, whoop!"

The Aggies received national attention for the big win. A&M placed fifth in both news agency polls, finishing 10-2 in the season. For Sherrill, this win was "the biggest . . . of (his) career because . . . of the things we had to endure to get here." And for all thick-blooded Ags around the world, this was a win that distinguished two kinds of people: "Aggies and those who wish they were."

OFFICIAL AGGIE FRATS

Greeks

Greek organizations granted recognition nine years after first attempt.

*I*n 1896 the first Greek organization, Alpha Phi, was founded at Texas A&M to link together former students. The fraternity merged with the Alumni Association in 1900, but the groundwork had been laid and a controversy had begun.

In the July 5, 1945, issue of "The Battalion," an article appeared, commenting on a July "Readers Digest" story that told of the evils of Greek letter organizations.

The "Battalion" article said, "Every Aggie who reads that article will be fully in accord with its every assertion; otherwise he cannot claim the supreme honor of being an Aggie, for A&M is symbolic of democracy — the worst enemy of the sorority and the fraternity."

In 1965, five Hart Hall residents decided to start a fraternal organization by the name Phi Delta Sigma. By 1973, numbering 56, they became a nationally recognized chapter of Sigma Phi Epsilon. When the group sought official recognition in 1977 they were denied.

In September 1985, nine years later, the University granted recognitions to Greek organizations. As of May, 1986, no sorority had applied for university recognition and the larger fraternities had voiced no intention of seeking recognition.

While some are claiming a victory for the Greeks, many members of the Greek system say they did not ask for recognition and do not want it.

Sigma Chi President Danny Parsley voiced his opinions, saying, "The strength of the fraternity system is strictly from within. What has the University done to help fraternities get to where they are today? Nothing."

Many fraternity members feel Interfraternity Council's recognition is enough because the Council is the fraternities governing body.

Wes Williams, president of the Interfraternity Council said, "If a fraternity gets in trouble, the IFC can act as an intermediary between the university and the fraternity."

"We're (the fraternities) big enough that we don't need what the university has to offer — meeting places or advertising. These things are good for a smaller fraternity," Williams said.

But Phi Sigma Kappa Vice President Tom Owmbey said university recognition "gives us the opportunity to become more visible to the students, and since we're a small organization now, this will allow us to grow," he said.

Opinions from students not affiliated with the Greek system are still somewhat mixed.

One Davis-Gary resident said he felt fraternities aren't really for A&M. He said he feels they are harmful to the school spirit and doesn't feel they participate in school traditions like Bonfire.

But Richard Williams, vice president of the university recognized agricultural fraternity Alpha Gamma Rho commented, "They complain that we won't participate in the traditions of A&M, but they give us a hard time if we do."

Cadet Peter Teliha voiced another opinion that seems to be prominent with the A&M student body.

"What's important is that you're an Ag first."

AGGIE'S DRINKING PLACES

Suds

Students find their favorite watering holes seven days a week.

*I*t sometimes was T.G.I.F. . Sometimes it was the infamous Thursday night on the town. Still other times could have been dollar Corona's on Wednesdays, Drink and Drown on Tuesdays or "just because" on Monday. Whatever the day was, most clubs and restaurants had a healthy drinking clientele throughout the week.

That crummy test. How could that prof even think of those questions? Archaic man. Yeah, another round. Who keeps shaking my bar stool? I'm moving.

Whether it was a starched button-down and Wranglers or an argyle vest and khakis, you could find all types of dressers and drinkers in every crowd. Blue jeans and longnecks in the Dixie Chicken crowd, except for a few mini-skirt and baggy jean-types drinking wine coolers.

Man, look at that fine guy over there. He didn't drink all those pitchers, did he? Good, let's go talk to him. Oh, yeah. O.K., you twisted my arm. One more game of pool, but that guy needs a domino partner for 42. Oh, my god. Did you see all the scooternasties are on the porch of Duddley's again with their bikes? But, the guys just won the intramural championship and they're in there. We can tough it out, just stay close together.

Just as much of a variety of people could be seen in the RoxZ lines. Lines, not crowds, because everyone was in lines with their plastic cups until the free drinks were over.

Sure, I'd love to dance. What kind of budget booze is this anyway? I'm growing hair on my chest. Don't lose me in this crowd. Let's fight our way to the dance floor, try to move on the floor and get out of here alive.

Graham Central Station, upholding several Aggies' budgets with $.75 drinks and shots, kept the dance floor packed with bobbing cowboy hats and shuffling boots.

How did she get those jeans on? I want to dance. I really want to dance. No, not him again, please no. Huh? Oh, no thanks. I'm waiting for some friends . . . Smile. Why me?

With a similar crowd, the Texas Hall of Fame, a favorite of Aggies for years, drew a younger crowd for dancin' and romancin'.

I swear she has gone out with half of that guy's seniors. She's investing in the future. Yeah, she keeps hitting on that junior.

Another diverse crowd conversed on MC2, the new-wave club where black walls and neon lights limit visibility, but enhanced the expressionistic dancing.

I really don't think I could ever wear that. Do you even believe it? Are those two guys or two girls or a guy and a girl? I think I just want to watch for awhile. Don't look into the lights after a few of those. It will really mess you up. Hey, have you seen my friend? She's still in the bathroom? Can she walk out? Not again!

Uncle Charlie's and Zephyr's also held their share of celebrators for sound system tunes. I finally finished this week. Monday seems like a year ago. It is definitely Miller time. I deserve it, I'm Bennigan's Bound. No dog deserves this kind of homework. Three papers and a mid-term? I can NOT go. No way. Dollar margaritas? O.K., but just for a little while, then I have to come back and study.

The lights go on. Strains of "Good night, Irene" play. The party's over. Couples group, new friends are made and you look for the people you rode with. Your roommate giggles, "I'm riding with somebody else."

Who is this guy I'm talking to anyway? He looks a whole lot different in the light.

Camp

A new generation catches a glimpse of what's to come.

*M*ickey Mouse ears and bug antennas hover above a sweaty mass of 650 confused and startled freshman as Fish Camp begins in Deware Field House. Camp counselors, dressed in novelties relating to themes for their individual camps, prepare freshmen for four days of aggie exposure, history and fun. As the A&M shuttle buses roll out of East Kyle parking lot on their way to Lakeview Methodist Assembly near Palestine, Fish Camp and new friendships begin.

Fish Camp, an Aggie tradition since 1954, was first established by Gordon Gay. The idea behind it was to provide a program to help freshmen realize what A&M was about and to feel more comfortable with their new surroundings. Today, Fish Camp provides these same services to about 2600 freshmen each year. "It was a great chance for freshman to learn about Aggie tradition and to make new friends," freshman Deborah Musachia said.

Planning for Fish Camp begins with the fall semester. Through an application and interview process, chairman, sub-chairman, and counselors are selected to help the director and associate director with Fish Camp. Freshman register to attend one of the four sessions offered by the Student "Y" at their summer conference.

Many opportunities are offered to the freshman at Fish Camp. The freshmen are introduced to the many organizations and aspects of A&M and encouraged to get involved. Everything from intramurals, student organizations, and Aggie traditions are presented.

Friends made are another major importance of Fish Camp. "It was four days of meeting people, playing games and partying," freshman Karen Gribschaw stated.

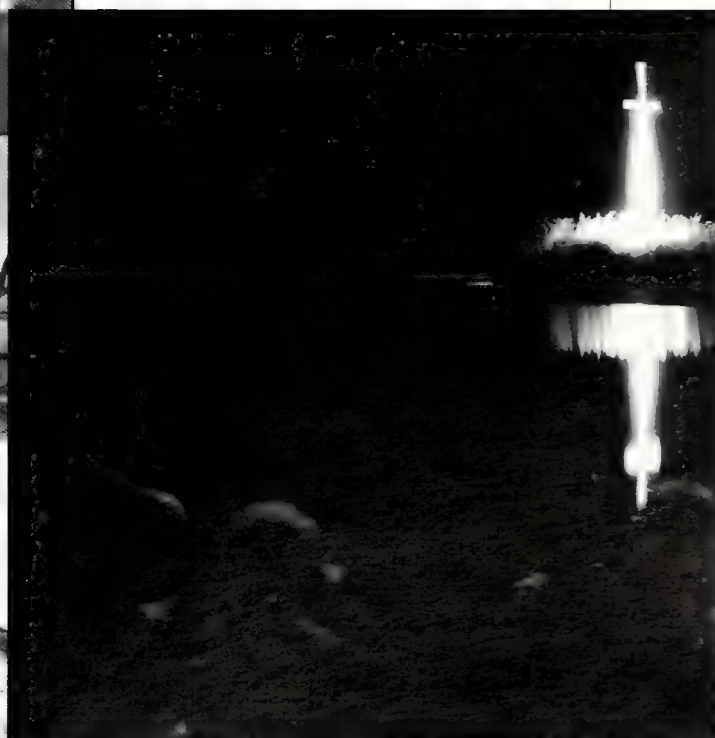

Summarizing his feelings on Fish Camp, 1986 Fish Camp Director, Chris Wallace said, "It has fun, friendship and Aggie love and sharing."

EXPRESSING THE SPIRIT OF A&M

All - U

"It's neat the way everyone gets fired up for the upcoming year."

*A*s the first day of classes drew to a close, A&M students gathered at Kyle Field for one of the first traditions of the year, All-University Night. On and off-campus Aggies were present to welcome back old students and to introduce the incoming freshmen to A&M.

"I think it's a great way to let freshmen and even upperclassmen see and hear from some of the people who make things happen on this campus," commented senior Melissa Muecke. "It's neat the way everyone gets fired up for the upcoming year," she said.

Head Yell Leader senior Thomas Buford opened the yell practice with general welcoming comments to the crowd and then turned the microphone over to Dr. Frank E. Vandiver, president of the University, for his official welcoming statement. Other welcoming speeches were made by Dr. John J. Koldus, vice president of student affairs, and senior Sean Royall, student body president.

Whoops filled the air when Athletic Director and Head Coach Jackie Sherrill was introduced to inform the crowd that the Aggies were going to be Cotton Bowl bound. Sherrill then presented Buford with an A&M jersey in recognition of the time and effort he had put into practices with the team. Whoops and cheers continued as Sherrill introduced the new members of the team and the candidates for the Aggie 12th Man Kick-off Team.

The yell leaders rounded out the evening with the first yell practice of the year. Students were led in the traditional Aggie yells, while dorms and corps outfits added hump-its of their own. "I wanted to come for my last time since I'm a graduating senior. I love hearing the crowd get fired up and listening to the different yells by the dorms," commented senior Dawn Miller.

Following All U-Night students were able to meet each other at a Howdy dance, which was held at the Hall of Fame.

CAUGHT IN THE SPIRIT

Rah-rah-rah

Football season brings a spirit that can n'er be told — the spirit of Aggieland.

*T*he beginning of every collegiate year signifies the kick-off of football season across the nation. Students, alumni and backers, young and old, gather to wear their alma mater's colors, voice their support or disfavor, crowd local restaurants or picnic from the tailgates of cars and to share in the spirit of the weekend.

During home game weekends, preparations for victory begin Friday night with pre-yell, pre-game action. For some fans, Northgate plays host. The Dixie Chicken, third major alcohol distributor of the county, accommodates 323 people, with many more overflowing onto University Drive. Dudley's Draw and Sunset Grill also contribute their share of celebrators. As 12 a.m. draws near, Kyle Field begins to fill with thousands of Aggies and enthusiasts eager for Midnight Yell Practice.

Tension and enthusiasm grow as the torches of the Fightin' Texas Aggie Band break through the crowd. The Aggie War Hymn vibrates, initiating whoops from the crowd. Juniors in the Corps of Cadets and their dates run alongside band members as they enter Kyle Field.

"There's never a chance for air, and if you lose grip of your date's beltloop you're gonna drown in the waves; you're holding on for dear life!" sophomore Grace Gonzales said.

The five Yell leaders, clad in overalls, energetically lead the familiar yells, unique to the A&M student body. "Farmers Fight" or a "Rah . . . rah . . . rah . . . rah . . . T . . . A . . . M . . . C" is punched out before the aggie crowd. Upon command, the crowd assumes the bent-bodied position, known as the Aggie hump-it. Freshmen wildcats and junior whoops echo throughout the stadium. Rock and Rachel, the hero and heroine of stories told by the yell leaders, bring the cry, "Get Grody" and whoops from the crowd. The signal to cut the lights brings instant darkness, except for the matches or lighters of underclassmen and dateless students watching their upperclassmen and other Aggies practice scoring by kissing their dates.

Game day activities begin early as visiting parents and friends roam dorm halls. Throughout the parking lots surrounding the stadium, families enjoy Tailgate parties and picnics. Some former students sport their maroon suits and boots around campus. Traffic is tight, ticket scalpers look for bids and a few youngsters sit at street intersections selling Aggie mums and memorabilia. "Rain or shine, we're going to sell," affirmed Tommy Parks, a mum salesman from College Station.

About two hours before every home game kick-off, the Corps of Cadets marches into Kyle Field for inspection and review. Chanting their jodies, they parade from the Corps Quadrangle to pass by the reviewing stand in the stadium. Joe Routt Boulevard crowds with spectators as parents and friends strain for a glimpse of their special cadet.

The game begins with Aggie fans standing in front of their seats in the spirit of the 12th Man, waiting for the yell leaders' signals to hump-it. A&M students remain on their feet until halftime. Like most sporting events, fans either shout verbal charms or sorcery. Aggies whoop or hiss their "Riffity, riffity, rif, raf's." Scoring points on the field means additional scores for the standing 12th Man. The Parson's Mounted Calvary cannon fires and Aggies receive their date's kiss for each score. Whoop!

The entire student side of the stadium — and most of the opposite side of the stadium — sways during the Aggie War Hymn at the end of the first quarter. The band then begins preparations for halftime. Upon command, "The Pulse of Aggieland" runs to the field's edge before performing like no other military marching band. Their performances consist of folding and interweaving columns and rows with precision and sharpness, bringing cheers from both sides of the stadium.

Before the football players return to the turf, senior students and boot-wearing cadets form boot line, a privilege specifically for seniors or "Zips" to spur the team onto victory.

After an Aggie win, yell leaders are chased down and carried off by freshmen to the fish pond for a refreshing dunk followed by a yell practice on the steps of the YMCA Building. If Aggies are "out-scored," a yell practice with the football players and coaching staff is held in Kyle Field immediately following the game.

Celebrations and comaraderie flow through the campus and town as the Aggies strengthen the tradition of a spirit that can n'er be told — the spirit of Aggieland.

OLD ELEPHANTS DIE AT A&M

Tips '86

Seniors waded through mud and water as they approach their final days of glory at the top.

*I*t was Tuesday November 26, 1985 at 12:30 in the afternoon. The atmosphere of a riot seemed to take hold of the A&M campus as senior students filled the plaza area in front of the Academic Building. The leaders of the group wore red workmen. Three other leaders wore blue jean overalls and led the massive group of seniors through various yells to pep them up for the march about to take place.

Meanwhile, various groups of juniors had set up ambushes throughout campus. Their toy guns were loaded, in hand and ready to fire when the seniors marched by.

A visitor of the campus would think this crowd was worse than the Kent State episode several years ago. However, the Aggies knew it was just the annual tradition of Elephant Walk. The march, Tuesday before the A&M vs. T.U. football game, symbolized the seniors as dead elephants who would no longer be of use to the Twelfth man student body. Juniors ready to take over their new lead rolls on campus, killed the dying elephants with water guns, water balloons and shaving cream.

"It was fun to have the juniors you knew try to get you with their water guns and balloons," said senior Susan Legg.

The line of the arm-in-arm seniors marched through several sentimental spots on campus as juniors continued the assault. The seniors were led through the fish pond and through campus. Then blocking traffic on University Drive, they meandered by the Dixie Chicken and down bottle cap alley.

After surviving several ambushes at the north campus dorms, the seniors caught a glimpse of a real elephant by the Albritton Bell Tower. The seniors marched into Kyle Field where a surprise steer was waiting for them with 37-10 (the score from last year's A&M vs. T.U. game) branded on its side. After a short yell practice, the seniors headed to the Quadrangle.

"It looked like a bunch of mud wrestling tournaments were taking place," commented senior Laura Goldwater in reference to the activities in the Corps area.

The mud-covered, dying elephants ended their trek at the site of Bonfire where a final yell practice was held with the yell leaders atop the stack. This muddy field and collection of wood was to become another annual Aggie bonfire to be held the next evening.

THE AGGIE TRADITION CONTINUES . .

Bonfire

Wet wind and wood makes for a slow-burning stack.

A campus-wide effort, led by the red pots, began the first week of October with the cutting of the wood. The centerpole went up on Halloween day. Thus, the birth of the stack, soon to become the representation of the Aggies' burning desire to beat t.u. — the Bonfire.

The building of Bonfire is no simple task. But, "If it was easy, everyone would build one," junior redpot Tim Truitt said.

Bonfire was completed less than two months after the first cut of wood. Two months of cutting classes and loss, late nights or all-nighters, blistered hands and aching shoulders resulted in the massive structure. The Wednesday before the Thanksgiving game, students, alumni and visitors gathered to watch it burn and fire up the Aggies to beat the hell outta t. u. .

Although the week-long drizzle had muddied the site, it didn't dampen the Twelfth Man's spirit. Blue-jeans, boots and tennis shoes quickly became caked as students sloshed around the mud to get a better view of the activities.

"It was so muddy I couldn't stand it," said senior Sherry Meyer.

Some students even wore rubber wading boots to get to the inner circle of the crowd. "I figured as a senior I was smart enough to know how muddy it would be, and I wore my rubber boots," said senior Drew DeHaes.

Many students were disappointed at the Bonfire because wet wood and wind refused to allow the stack to light. Many students even jokingly called it "nonfire." The fire did, however, burn for five hours and, in fact, burned passed midnight (until 2 a.m.), which is traditionally an omen of an Aggie victory the next day.

Ranger/Cheap Trick

Night Ranger made their debut performance at Texas A&M to standing-room-only crowd in G. Rollie White Coliseum on October 11. The crowd was "ready to rock" with guest band Cheap Trick. Rock was the only style the versatile group emulated playing such hits as "She's Tight," "I Want You to Want Me," "Are You Ready To Rock?" and "Surrender."

"I especially liked Rick Nielson and his guitars," said concert goer Guy Wiggs, "I thought Cheap Trick's guitar show was impressive."

Night Ranger, opening their act with an elaborate light show and special effects, climbed out of an Aladdin's lamp and proceeded to make the audience's wishes come true. Special crowd pleasers were "Sentimental Street," "When You Close Your Eyes," and "Rocking America". "Night Ranger performed with such enthusiasm that the whole audience got caught up in the act," said freshman Sharon Osbourne after watching the show. They concluded the evening with an encore, performing both "Sister Christian" and "Don't Tell Me You Love Me."

George Strait

"It reminded me of Elvis, the way the girls were going crazy over him," described senior Dave Martin after the George Strait concert held on November 14 in G. Rollie White.

Before the hottest country heart throb since Elvis made his appearance, The Texas Honky Tonk Band, which featured members from around Austin and San Marcos, including a member who graduated from A&M, opened the road show for Strait. The warm-up band played several country gold numbers in their own version of country swing.

Screams rose from the girls in the crowd as Strait, in his ever present starched Wranglers and flat-brimmed cowboy hat, joined his Ace in the Hole band on the stage. From the howls of several females in the audience, it was evident that Strait had not lost his lady-killer touch.

After his last number, Strait signed autographs on such items as boots and even a pair of high top tennis shoes passed toward the stage.

Dan Peek

Folk singer Dan Peek provided a comfortable mix of Christian music and pop rock to Rudder Auditorium. The Graf brothers opened the evening for Peek, and Peek's performance was just over an hour long. Peek, former member of America, sang some of his classics, intermixed with new material. His opening song was 'Ventura Highway.'

The performance was energetic, but Peek added a more subdued air to the evening by speaking of his reasons for performing Christian music and his personal religious beliefs. Peek's brother backed him up playing both keyboard and guitar. Together they pleased the audience with catchy tunes, including 'I Need You.' and 'Lonely People.'

Lee Greenwood

After a surprisingly entertaining opening by The Shoppe, a six-man band from Dallas, Lee Greenwood opened his February 9th performance with the title cut from his latest album, "Streamline." Greenwood played to a full Rudder Auditorium, after an unexpected location move from G. Rollie White Coliseum. Playing to the crowd as always, Greenwood quickly made friends with the front row. Greenwood even gave away an autographed album as he serenaded a newly married couple with "their song," a song he chose for them. Greenwood surprised the audience with what he said was "the song that started it all for him." He broke into a chorus of "McDonald's and You." Greenwood went through such popular favorites as "I Owe You," his recent hit "Dixie Road" and his most recent number—one hit, "I Don't Mind the Thorns." Greenwood also sang some of the songs he has written for such artists as Kenny Rogers and Dan Hill. He then went back to such old favorites as "Somebody's Gonna Love You" and another recent hit, "Don't Underestimate My Love." As a finale, Greenwood sang his patriotic hit, "God Bless the U.S.A.," as a dedication to the Space Shuttle Crew, drawing a standing ovation when a huge American flag was unfurled during the final chorus.

American Music Tour

The Aggies had their chance to do some whooping and foot stomping to their favorite country songs when the American Music Tour came to Aggieland. The tour, consisting of Sylvia, T.G. Sheppard, Janie Fricke, Exile and Eddie Rabbitt, performed on February 20th for a small but enthusiastic crowd in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Vivacious as ever, Sylvia led the musical line-up and soon had the crowd clapping and singing along with her. The audience especially enjoyed her hit, "Nobody."

Things took a more romantic turn when T.G. Sheppard took the stage singing "Loved Them Every One." The coliseum was filled with whistles and screams as Sheppard sang all his favorite songs, finishing his show by singing "Finally."

Janie Fricke, the headliner of the tour, followed Sheppard. Fricke and her band entertained a clapping crowd with a fast-paced closing routine. After the dancing, Fricke sang her hits, "It Ain't Easy Being Easy" and "He's A Heartache." After a fifteen minute intermission, the group Exile burst onto stage to sing their hits, "Promises" and "Woke Up in Love," drawing a number of female fans to the foot of the stage. By the time they had finished their show with "Give Me One More Chance," all of G. Rollie was on their feet.

Eddie Rabbitt finished the tour's performance, leaning heavily on the introduction of his road manager's rousing version of "Orange Blossom Special" and "Smokey Mountain Breakdown" on the fiddle. Entertaining the audience with his easy banter, Rabbitt brought back a few memories with his hits, "Rocky Mountain Music" and "Driving My Life Away."

After Rabbitt's performance, the entire crew was brought back on stage to perform a song, written by Rabbitt, called "Friends."

Noises Off

Many people were tickled and touched by the fast-paced comedy "Noises Off," presented in Rudder Tower on November 12th. Throughout the performance, the audience was amused by the story of a frustrated director, Noel Harris, and his attempts to control his zany cast of actors.

The comedy, written by Michael Frayn, was actually a play within a play. "Noises Off" shows the dilemmas a group of actors face in practicing and performing their play, "Nothing On." The play opened with a very unorganized, "technical, dress rehearsal" for "Nothing On." The action was quick and unending with a continuous banging of doors as the group of actors faced several problems. The problems ranged from a continually napping, alcoholic actor, to the director's affairs with both the assistant stage manager and one of the actresses, to the lovers' quarrel that erupts between two of the main characters.

Frayn's comedy ended with the boggled performance of "Nothing On," the actors being just as confused as to where they are as the audience was. The audience could not help but enjoy themselves during this well-performed comedy. "The acting was excellent. I was really impressed with how humorous the play was, and it continued to get funnier and funnier as it progressed. The end was hilarious," said senior John McClelland.

Side By Side

'Side by side by Sondheim' was a remarkable salute to the music of Stephen Sondheim by members of the Missouri Repertory Theater. More of a show than a play, the audience enjoyed two hours of high-energy musical entertainment.

The Repertory captured many aspects of Sondheim and human life in their brief time on stage. They ranged from brassy burlesque to chorus lines, and wittily covered such topics as marital squabbles and a bride's last nervous thoughts prior to her wedding, 'Getting Married Today.' The audience left well-contented after a toe-tapping evening with the Repertory.

Brigadoon

A Scottish setting took the audience in Rudder Auditorium back in time as Brigadoon was performed March 26. Two hunters in Scotland meet up with village people from centuries ago who live peacefully as the rest of the world wears away. One hunter falls in love with a girl and returns back in time to marry her.

42nd Street

Forty-second Street was performed in Rudder Auditorium February 27. This 1981 Tony Award winner was a song and dance musical telling the story of a girl with a dream for Broadway. After meeting up with a producer, her talent is discovered and her dream comes true.

Oldest Living Graduate

The Oldest Living Graduate was performed in Rudder Auditorium on April 24. This musical wrapped up the year by following a Texas Sesquicentennial theme.

The play dealt with a man living in Texas who was found to be the oldest living graduate from the Military Academy in Galveston. The man owned a piece of land in Texas which he kept untouched to savor past memories. After having a stroke and remembering all of his college friends who had passed away, he realized everything must change and decided to give the land to his son to develop.

Cyrano De Bergerac

Tragedy and unrequited love filled the stage of Rudder Theater when Cyrano de Bergerac was performed. Actor John Cullum played a sharp-witted Cyrano, quick with both words and sword, but ever-so-conscious of his long protruding nose. The play revolves around Cyrano's love for Roxane, played by Megan Gallagher.

The classic tangle of deceit and unrequited love was approached at first in a light and witty manner as Cyrano falls in love with Roxane, who in turn falls in love with Christian. Christian and Cyrano join forces to impress Roxane.

The play turned more somber when Christian and Cyrano are sent to the front line to fight. Christian, now married to Roxane, sends her numerous love letters, which Cyrano has composed. Roxane, very much in love with the author of the letters, rushes to the front line, but Christian is killed before Roxane discovers the truth. Roxane does not discover Cyrano is the true one she loves until he is fatally wounded. They exchange vows of love in a touching scene at the end, which inspired more than one tear to drop in the audience.

St. Louis Symphony

The Saint Louis Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of nationally acclaimed Leonard Slatkin, opened the 1985-86 OPAS concert season on September 12.

The two-hour performance opened with Czech composer Antonin Dvorak's overture, "Carnival" which depicted a late 1800's traveler swept into the festivities of a Bohemian carnival.

The ballet score of "Billy the Kid," by the Aaron Copland, was performed in its entirety.

The four movements of Russian composer Peter Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. Four in Fruinos," encompassed the remainder of the concert. The symphony crescendoed in tempo with each succeeding movement until it reached a climactic ending of instrumental sound and motion.

Slatkin conducted a short selection of music as an encore to the concert. One audience member commented that during the less exciting parts of the evening's music, Leonard Slatkin "brought the music to life."

Hal Holbrook

Actor Hal Holbrook delighted the Bryan-College Station area audience January 28, 1986 with his Mark Twain Tonight performance. The one-man show, where he "becomes" Twain, is the on-going brainchild of Holbrook who created the act when attending Dennison University in the late 40's. After graduation, he was forced to perform it to support his family. Even after countless acting positions and three Emmy Awards for "Sandburg's Lincoln," "The Senator," and "Pueblo," he continues the show.

For reasons that only Holbrook understands, Mark Twain Tonight does not remain the same. Some 1800 performances reveal differently time and again that he has "penetrated the man's soul" as Elliot Norton, Boston Herald American, has remarked; and that no set program is needed to please his audiences.

Hubbard Street Dance Company

Artistic director Leo Conte of the Hubbard Street Dance Company created a fine show of modern and contemporary dance, ballet, jazz and tap. His fourteen dancers entertained the Rudder audience November 17 with various numbers to keep hands clapping and feet tapping.

The Company, originally formed in 1977, trains and attracts accomplished dancers. They have been described as "sleek, well-trained . . . full of personality" dancers who dance "as if they and the audience were friends." The fourteen moved with remarkable control to the guest choreography of Clare Bataille, John McFall and Lynne Taylor. Four star show!

Chamber Music Society of Lincoln

The Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center, considered the "musical success story of the generation," came to Texas A&M on October 18. Charles Wadsworth, artistic director of the production, played piano along with the other four musicians, Gervase DePeyer, Ida Kavafian, Ik-Hwan Bae, and Walter Trampler who played the clarinet, violins (Bae and Trampler), and viola respectively.

This second production of the OPAS XIII season consisted of music from Stravinsky, Mozart, Brahms, and Schumann. Thyra Plass of the Bryan-College Station Eagle commented that the Chamber Music Society was "one of the true highlights of the . . . season."

Vienna Boys Choir

The Vienna Choir Boys, perhaps the best known vocal group in the world, filled the ears of a capacity crowd with effervescent sounds in Rudder Auditorium, February 11, on their 1986 U.S. Winter Tour. The choir carries on a five century-old tradition of singing costumed operettas, sacred songs, secular and folk music. Every season two groups of 24 choristers tour simultaneously with their choirmasters, tutors and nurses. Their over 3000 appearances since 1498 have been before numerous heads of states, Popes and internationals of Japan, South America, Asia and Australia.

Yung UK Kim

Violinist, Yung Uk Kim performed in Rudder Auditorium on February 21 with the finesse of the reputed world master. The 37-year-old Korean played pieces by Mozart, Schoenberg, Faure and Beethoven. Robert McDonald accompanied him on the piano.

Kim brought with him an established reputation as an outstanding violinist throughout the world during his twenty-year career. Since the age of 16, he has played for audiences in Asia, North America and Europe. Kim has appeared with the world's leading orchestras, such as the Chicago Symphony, Philadelphia Orchestra, New York Philharmonic and the Cleveland Orchestra of the United States; along with the Berlin Philharmonic, Vienna Philharmonic, and Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam.

Labeque Pianists

MSC OPAS' spring season brought internationally famous Katia and Marielle Labeque to Texas A&M on March 27. The French duo performed a two-piano arrangement that included renditions by Mozart, Brahms, Stravinsky, Berio, Gershwin and ragtime composers.

The sisters have played since the days of their youth in France and have performed in nearly every major city in the world including regular tours through Japan and the United States. On the international level, they have a following much like many pop stars.

The Labeque's orchestral engagements have included the Berlin Philharmonic, Boston Symphony, Cleveland Orchestra, London Philharmonic, Amsterdam Concertgebouw, Israel Philharmonic, Montreal Symphony and the Vienna Philharmonic.

Houston Ballet

The Houston Ballet presented two performances, Peer Gynt on April 9 and Giselle on April 10. Glenn Langdon directed the music, while Bob Stevenson and Marius Petipa staged and choreographed respectively.

Both dramatic ballets were dedicated to the memory of John L. Thornton, member of the MSC OPAS student committee.

Archy and Mehitabel

The Aggie Players started their 1985-86 season with the musical "Archy and Mehitabel." It is based on the paragraphs and messages Don Marquis claimed he received from Archy the cockroach and printed in his daily column with the New York Sun. In 1957, it was made into a musical titled Shinbone Alley by Mel Brooks, Joe Darion and George Kleinsinger. The title was later changed to its present name.

The musical is about the antics of Archy, a poetically inclined cockroach with a soul, and his unscrupulous alley cat friend, Mehitabel. Troy A. Herbort portrayed Archy, and Gwendolyn Pesek played Mehitabel. The play was performed October 4, 5 and 10-12 in Rudder Forum.

Skin of Our Teeth

The Skin of Our Teeth, the Pulitzer Prize winning comedy by playwright Thornton Wilder, was performed by the Aggie Players on November 8-9, 21-23 in Rudder Forum. They also presented the play in Denton, Texas as part of the American College Theatre Festival.

The play is the story of the Antrobus family and their adventures through the ages. They survive everything from the Ice Age, to the Great Flood, and a World War. It is a great commentary on man's ability to survive through time and by "the skin of his teeth."

The cast of characters consisted of thirty-five people from Mrs. Antrobus portrayed by Emma Charlotte Reading and Patrick Barrett as Mr. Antrobus to Gwendolyn Pesek as the planet Saturn.

Hollow Crown

Aggieland experienced a bit of its own renaissance festival. English subjects came alive on the stage of Rudder Forum as members of the Aggie Players performed The Hollow Crown on December 5-7, their last performance of the fall semester.

The Hollow Crown is a Reader's Theatre piece in which a small group of performers, backed by a musical consort, read selections of historical and fictional material to create portraits of renowned characters in history.

Created by John Barton of the Royal Shakespeare Company in 1960, The Hollow Crown is an anthology of readings that explores the humanity of the English kings and queens. The lives of the monarchs are presented through legends, chronicled histories, diaries and the eyes of playwrights. It begins with a reading from Shakespeare and then proceeds to examine the lives of the monarchs from William I to Queen Victoria's coronation at the age of nineteen. The play closes with a final reading from Morte D'Arthur by Sir Thomas Malory.

A Cry of Players

William Shakespeare's life as a young man is portrayed in A Cry of Players by William Gibson. This was the first presentation of the spring semester by the Aggie Players. It was performed on February 26, 27, 28 and March 1.

A Cry of Players is set in the 1580's at a small village in England. It is a fictitious rendering of Shakespeare's life and his relationship with his wife and children. The play also attempts to explain Shakespeare's call to writing by his infatuation with a troupe of actors that come to town. The actors inspire his poetic heart and he makes the decision to leave the security of his family to follow his dramatic nature.

Twelfth Night

The Aggie Players ended their 41st season with the Shakespeare play Twelfth Night, which poet John Masefield describes as 'the most perfect comedy in the English language.' The play is filled with love, mistaken identities and practical jokes.

The main plot of the Twelfth Night begins with Viola and Sebastian, twins, shipwrecked and separated on the coast of Illyria. Viola, played by Sonya Merriam, disguises herself as a boy, Cesario, and becomes a servant to Duke Orsino, ruler of the land. Viola secretly loves the Duke, but he loves the Countess Olivia, who in turn, loves the servant Cesario. The play continues in this mad circle until Sebastian arrives on the scene which causes everything to become more confused. In the end love triumphs with the Duke and Viola and Countess Olivia and Sebastian vowing their love to each other.

Behind this main plot are the antics of Countess Olivia's uncle and servants. Olivia's lady-in-waiting, Maria, is in love with her mistress' drunken uncle, Sir Toby, and they join with Sir Andrew, Olivia's strange suitor, and Feste, the fool, to deceive Malvolio, the steward. He is tricked into wearing yellow stockings by a supposed loveletter from Olivia and winds up in jail because everyone thinks he is crazy. This, combined with the main plot, produces a very amusing and entertaining play that the Aggie Players performed wonderfully!

Political Forum

E. L. Miller Lecture Series

The "Future in Space" was the topic of this year's E. L. Miller Lecture Series. Political Forum brought in nine speakers to discuss this idea over a two-day period. The subtopics of the presentation concerned the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) and the commercialization of space.

Dr. Robert Bowman, Lt. General Daniel Graham, Dr. Robert Lawrence and Brigadier General Malcolm O'Neill were the distinguished speakers who presented their views on SDI. Dr. Bowman and Dr. Lawrence were wary of the SDI with Lawrence wanting to continue development, but also wanting proof that it worked before its usage. Brigadier General O'Neill and Lt. General Graham were in favor of the SDI.

The commercialization of space was discussed by Dr. Joseph Allen, Arthur Dula and William Huffstetler with Nancy Wood as the moderator. In their introductory comments, all the speakers stressed the growing importance of space. Dr. Allen felt that there would be an increasing number of people and a development of factories in space. Arthur Dula commented that this would be the "last generation that lives entirely on the surface of the earth." He also emphasized the new resource opportunities in space and how they would create a new wealth. William Huffstetler felt that all new frontiers are first explored and then exploited and stated, "space is the next frontier."

In the open discussion the speakers covered foreign competition, the interest of Japan and Europe in our technology, research in space and the development of crystals and pharmaceuticals and the efficiency of NASA. Afterward the floor was opened for questions.

The E. L. Miller Lecture Series was presented November 20-21 by MSC Political Forum, the fifth year for this event.

Sarah Weddington

Sarah Weddington, who won the landmark case of Roe v. Wade, came to Texas A&M on December 3, 1985 to discuss the issue of abortion. Weddington first explained the attitudes toward abortion in the 1970's and why she decided to take the case of Roe v. Wade. The lines of argument she used in representing the case were the past history of abortion statutes, the impact of pregnancy on the life of a woman and the questioning of the right of the state to regulate a woman's decision.

Weddington went on to discuss other issues such as the bombing of abortion clinics, the many individual stories behind the reasons for abortion, regulations on abortion procedures and the fact that the federal government does not provide money for abortions. Her summation was that when the experts cannot agree on when life begins, then the choice should be reserved to the individual. She added, "I submit that that should be the law today and in the future."

Gubernatorial Program

1986 being an election year, MSC Political Forum included in its programs for the year a presentation by each of the candidates running in the Texas governor's primary. The five men involved were invited to speak at Texas A&M in order to "increase the student awareness on the issues concerning the governor's role," stated Political Forum member Heidi Kemp.

Republican Tom Loeffler was the first to speak and spoke on September 24. Kent Hance (Republican) spoke on October 9 and Bill Clements (Republican) presented his views on February 19. Democrat Andrew Briscoe was the final candidate and spoke on March 5. Each presentation consisted of the candidate explaining his credentials, platform and goals for Texas with a question and answer period following. The programs generated a great deal of interest and most of the presentations attracted a full house.

Gun Control

MSC Political Forum invited David Berg and Herb Chambers to Texas A&M to debate the heated issue of gun control. This debate stirred many emotions from the moderator, Jim Stachura and from the audience. Both men were very involved with their cause and ready to defend their point of view.

Berg, a Houston lawyer who has published essays on gun control, argued against the right to bear arms and Chambers, a field director for the National Rifle Association, defended this right. Berg felt it was time to enact a policy of making guns harder to purchase, but Chambers felt that this becomes a problem of infringing on an individual's rights.

Texas Prisons

The deputy director of the Texas Department of Corrections, Dr. James E. Riley, spoke at Texas A&M on April 9 and discussed the problems facing this institution. Overcrowding is the main drawback that is being fought by the Texas prison system. If nothing is done about this problem before September 1987, the federal courts will force the Texas Department of Corrections to release some of the inmates to decrease overpopulation. Riley said, 'The solution, obviously, to overcrowding is either release the inmates to meet population caps, or we build new facilities.' New facilities at Palestine and the establishment of trustees camps are being considered, but the sell of state land that would support this project has not taken place.

Political Awareness Day

"I think it really afforded the students and anyone who went through the MSC on March 11 the opportunity to become more aware of today's world and political issues," stated Erika Bondy, director of special events and travel in Memorial Student Center Political Forum, concerning Political Awareness Day.

Approximately twenty political, economic and social groups were present at the MSC on March 11 from 9-4 to take place in Political Awareness Day. This event provided an opportunity for them to present their views by direct contact with the people. Another feature of this day was an open forum, held in the Flag Room, in which representatives of the various groups were given time to speak.

Some of the groups represented were the Aggie GOP, the Libertarians with their motto of "deregulate everything", Brazos Valley Peace Action, American Atheists, Young Democrats, Socialist Workers Party, Students Against Drunk Driving, Texas Classroom Teachers Association, various local candidates and the gubernatorial candidates.

Timothy Leary

Timothy Leary spoke to an audience September 25 in Rudder. The message of the lecture from this former Harvard professor and psychedelic drug experimenter was to think for yourself and question authority. Leary spoke on an individual's intelligence in stages. Knowledge is received first through word-of-mouth, then through reading. After books, he included hand-held computers.

Free Speech Day

In a Free Speech Day sponsored by Great Issues at Rudder Fountain in November, leaders from NOW, Students Against Apartheid, Gay Student Services and spectators voiced their opinions. Among the speakers included NOW member Rick Aronstein who spoke on the birth control issue at Texas A&M and Marco Roberts, president of Gay Student Services who argued against the fairness of laws concerning sexual relations between homosexuals.

Joseph LoPiccolo

Dr. Joseph LoPiccolo spoke on a topic "Love and Sex in the 80's" on February 5 in Rudder. The lecture addressed current views and values about love. LoPiccolo ended the discussion by answering questions from the audience.

Dr. Charles King

In a four hour seminar on racial discrimination, Dr. Charles King spoke about modern racism and how people view each other. The seminar entitled "Judge Not by the Color of Their Skin" was cosponsored by the Black Awareness Committee on February 18.

Dr. Lawrence Busch

A lecture on Agricultural ethics by Dr. Lawrence Busch was presented February 26 in Rudder. The speech, cosponsored with the Departments of Philosophy and Sociology, questioned ideas such as whether the increase in agriculture production was good and how technology would influence the goals for U.S. agriculture. The speech was titled "As Research: and Instrumental Approach."

Jeremy Levin

Former Beirut hostage and television newsman Jeremy Levin spoke to an audience in Rudder on March 4. After being held hostage in Lebanon for 11 months, Levin escaped a year ago. Levin felt that the U.S. government did not deal with basic causes of terrorism in the Middle East which he considered to be the displaced Palestinians and social and religious disagreements.

Marc Berkowitz

Auschwitz survivor, Marc Berkowitz spoke at Texas A&M during the spring semester about his experiences at the concentration camp during World War II. His tragedy started at age 12 when his family was forced to leave their home. His father was later killed and he and his family lived in a Jewish ghetto. In 1944, his family was turned over to the Gestapo who sent them to Auschwitz. It was at this time that he met with Joseph Mengele who experimented with he and his twin sister until they were released.

Alexander Ginzburg

Soviet dissident, Alexander Ginzburg spoke before a large audience in Rudder Auditorium April 16 of his life in the U.S.S.R and repression of human rights.

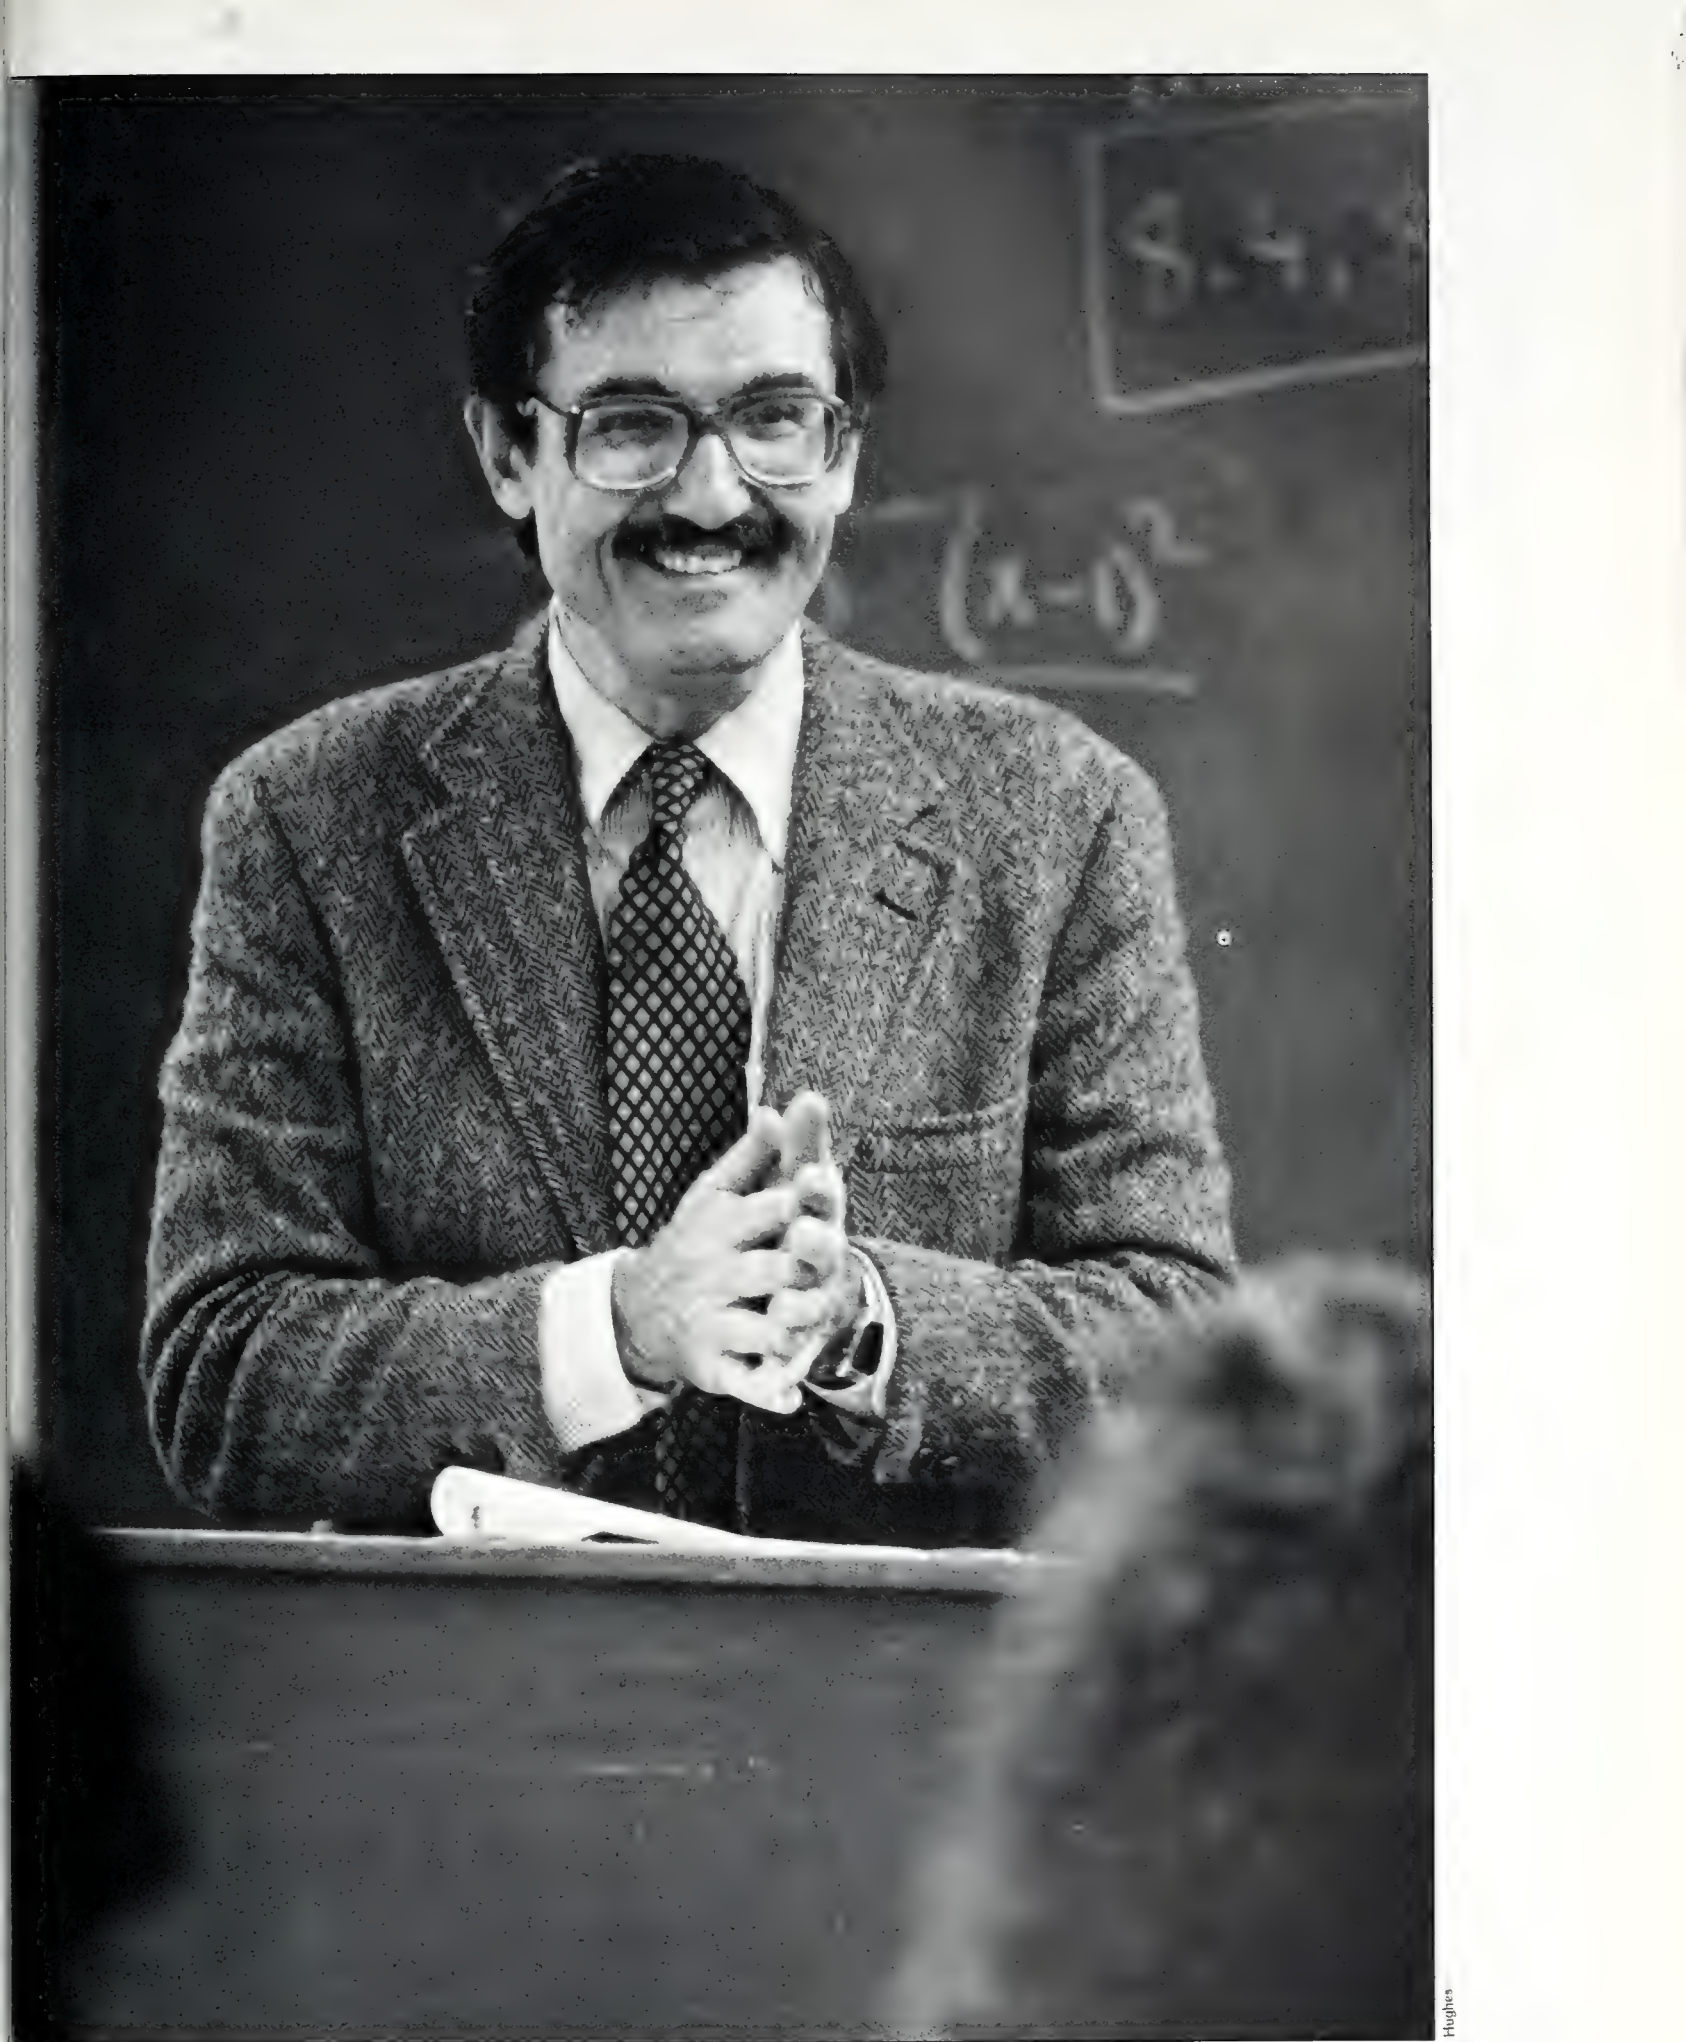

In the Soviet Union, Ginzburg said, the government puts 'fear into the minds of the people' so they may not revolt. He said that the state destroys the church and faith of the people, then removes the reasoning power of the intellectual people of the society. The intent destroys the creative and reasonable thoughts of the people, so they conform to the standards of the Soviet Union.

For Ginzburg, his support of human rights needed expression. As a journalist he faced the newspaper censorship and confrontations with the authorities. He was arrested three times and spent a total of nine years in Soviet prisons and forced labor camps. In 1979, Ginzburg was traded to the west for two convicted Soviet spies. He lost citizenship of his homeland, yet gained his rights.

Joni Cody

MSC Great Issues with the Agriculture and Liberal Arts Project sponsored Joni Cady, a licensed clinical social worker from Los Angeles, and a panel discussion on eating disorders on April 28. The panelists included Drs. Sara Alpern, assistant professor of history; Alex McIntosh, associate professor of sociology; Alice Hunt, a nutrition specialist; and Kerry Hope, associate director of counseling at A&M.

Scna 31

The 31st Student Conference on National Affairs began February 12 with an opening address from William Stewart, a diplomatic correspondent for Time Magazine. "The Myriad Challenges of the Middle East" was the topic of this year's SCNA, and Stewart started the conference by discussing the history and politics that have shaped the Middle East. He also pointed out the importance of the Middle East in regard to the United States because of its oil exportation and its location in relationship to China and the Soviet Union. This opening gave the delegates a basis for the rest of the conference.

Economics was the topic discussed by Dr. Odeh Aburdene, senior vice president and manager of the New York branch of Arab Bank Ltd., on the second day of SCNA. Aburdene emphasized the fact that oil is the Middle East's largest commodity and that without it they would have no other major exportation. The United States imports oil from the Middle East, but at the same time exports "over $15 billion per year" to them and this creates jobs in the U.S.A. This makes the relationship between the U.S. and the Middle East a very productive and important one.

"Modernization and Islamic Revival" in the Middle East was the next presentation by SCNA. A panel consisting of Dr. John Williams, a University of Texas professor, Dr. Elizabeth Fernea, also a UT professor and Dr. Andrew Hess of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University met to address this idea. Williams felt that the Middle East was re-embracing Islam in order to gain control of a society they feel they are losing to European nations. The panel also felt that modernization of the Middle East was occurring too quick and destroying important aspects of the area.

Dr. Joseph Sisco, former under secretary of state for political affairs, addressed the SCNA delegates on Friday, February 14, about American foreign policy towards the Middle East. Sisco said the United States is influential in the Middle East and it is possible to use this to help solve some of the difficulties in this area.

Ambassador Clovis Maksoud, permanent observer to the United Nations for the League of Arab States, and Dr. Moshe Ma'oz, chairman of the department of Islamic and Middle East studies at Hebrew University, met to discuss the Arab/Israeli conflict on the third day of SCNA. Ma'oz presented the Israeli point of view with Maksoud representing the Arabs. Both men requested peace and an end to the conflict, but each had certain opinions as to what was blocking this success. Ma'oz felt that the PLO was the main problem, but Maskoud thought that it was due to the fact that the Israelis established their state at the expense of the Palestinians.

SCNA ended with a closing address by Dr. William Quandt, a senior fellow in the Foreign Policy Studies program at the Brookings Institution. Quandt felt that America needs to get rid of its attitude of "benign neglect" toward the Middle East, realize its importance and "play a more effective role" in the Middle East.

Wiley Lecture Series

MSC Wiley Lecture Series presented their annual event April 1 in Rudder Auditorium with the topic of "U.S. Interventionism: Resolving International Conflict." The lecture featured Dr. Stephen Ambrose and Former Presidents Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford. The moderator was Mr. George Will.

Dr. Ambrose, a distinguished professor of history at several universities and author of over 12 books on military affairs and foreign policy brought much insight into the debate. Dr. Ambrose was currently researching a biography of former President Richard Nixon.

Former President Jimmy Carter served as President of the U.S. from 1977 to 1980. During his term he concerned himself with human rights in the conduct of foreign affairs. His term included dealings with Panama, normalizing relations with the People's Republic of China and negotiating peace between Egypt and Israel.

Former President Gerald Ford who served as the 38th President of the U.S. was involved in U.S. politics from 1948 when he was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives until January 1977 after his term as president.

INTERNATIONAL CULTURE

Week

Student representatives of 47 different countries came together March 3 to kick-off International Week.

*W*ith over 35 different countries represented, International Week started off with brilliant displays of color and excitement. The week, sponsored by the International Student Association, began March 3 with different cultural booths located in the Memorial Student Center for two days, giving students the chance to see different types of cultures represented by A&M students of different nationalities.

"It is an amazing thing to happen to see it all come together," said Tina Watkins, advisor of the International Student Association. "You get to see all the different cultures and ways of doing things." The association represents 47 different countries with their clubs and involves approximately 5,000 students.

The week closed on March 5 with a Food Fair and Talent and Dress Parade. Tickets for the Food Fair were six dollars and gave students the opportunity to taste the most popular foods of approximately 35 different countries. Ticket sales were limited to only 1,000 students due to the inability to cook for more than that number of students.

The Food Fair was followed by a Talent and Dress Parade. This event started with a thirty minute parade of costumes from the students' native countries. These costumes ranged from garb worn in much earlier times to current styles of clothes worn in the countries.

A talent performance followed the dress parade. This show was presented by 15 different groups who had passed an audition. It included different songs and dances of the students' native homeland.

The evening ended with an award of 1,000 dollars presented to Graeme Wren of Australia as the Outstanding International Student. The award was donated by a former president of the International Student Association, Reyadah Chakmachi.

In conclusion, Ms. Watkins said, "I hope we're doing something nice for the world."

THE EVENT HAS ALL HELPING

Big

T easier ads riddled the student body for weeks. The Big Event countdown had started. Freshmen bewildered by this subject sought answers. What was this Big Event?

On Saturday, March 8 Aggies marked a date to show their appreciation to the cities of Bryan and College Station. This annual event was a chance for students to help out in various community activities such as cleaning elderly individuals' yards, picking up trash around local community sites and roads or helping out at community centers, nursing homes and other facilities.

The Student Government-sponsored event started at 10 a.m. and lasted until 2 p.m. with students working in their campus groups to provide a service for the community.

"It really makes you feel good to help people who really need it," said senior Mark Giltner. "It's even fun when you are working with a group of your friends."

As one of the participating groups, Business Student Council President Doug Boughton commented, "I enjoyed the fact that our group could provide a service to the community. It makes you feel like you did something really worthwhile."

Following the Big Event, a picnic was held at Hensel Park for all of the participants. Free food and drink were provided while students slowly trickled in usually covered with dirt from cleaning yards or hauling trash.

Senior Lee Alford concluded by saying, "You wouldn't think that spending your afternoon filling holes in a yard with sand would be fun, but I really had a good time."

STUDENTS PLAY ALL-NITE

Fair

Nine hours of carnival booths and contests fill the MSC.

Picking up on Texas's 150th birthday, the Memorial Student Center All Nite Fair committee followed the Texas Sesquicentennial theme for the 10th annual All Nite Fair held March 8 in the Memorial Student Center.

Nine hours of fun and games filled the MSC as over 60 various campus-wide clubs participated in carnival booths, contests and other events. Students purchased tickets to be used for the games or booths of their choice. All proceeds of the Fair went back into the MSC and participating organizations.

In following the Texas Sesquicentennial theme, booths such as the Longhorn Toss, hayrides, a BBQ cafe and even country dancing were available for the students. The Fair featured the Executives, I-TEX, and Bobolinks as the live bands for dancing.

"I thought the theme was a little lacking," said senior Tom Ownbey, "but there was a lot of energy in the booths and participants and that made it enjoyable for the participants."

Commenting on the type of booths at the Fair, junior Kevin Whelton said, "It was neat. Each organization had a booth that fit their group. IEEE had a floppy disk throw, Horticulture had a bean toss for plants. Nothing was generic."

Other booths at the Fair included a case area sponsored by the Corps of Cadets in which you could have a friend captured and put in the case. Also, APO sponsored a back massage booth and an Agriculture group had a remote control tractor that participants drove through a maze.

This energy seemed to fill the entire student center from 5 p.m. to 2 a.m. as students participated in the fun and games of the Fair. "It was all fun! People were having a good time," said Whelton. "I played black jack all night and lost all my money and I still enjoyed it."

ENTERTAINMENT DAZZLES

Shows

MSC student committees produce top notch performances.

*T*he sparkle and dazzle of entertainment seems to appear on the stage as if magic but behind the scenes, an entire other picture develops. Two MSC Committees presented shows this year of sparkle and dazzle which were produced entirely by students on the committees. These shows included the Miss TAMU Pageant produced by the MSC Hospitality Committee and the Variety Show presented by the MSC Variety Show Committee.

Saturday, February 22 brought the end of an event which took about 10 months in planning — the Miss TAMU Pageant. This pageant, an affiliate of the Miss Texas Pageant, was produced entirely by a committee within MSC Hospitality.

Mardi Gras was the theme for the pageant and the brightness of a party filled the stage. Catherine Vincent was crowned Miss TAMU and was to represent Texas A&M in the Miss Texas Pageant in July.

"The pageant took a lot of hard work to produce but it is great to see it actually take place," said senior Bonne Bejarano, director for the 1986 pageant.

The Variety show titled "You Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet" was another MSC production produced entirely by students on the MSC Variety Show Committee.

The show was held April 11 for Parents Weekend. Emcee, David Naster started the show with his own act which kept the audience in stitches. The show proceeded with several acts from students who had passed an audition earlier in the semester. First place went to a guitar and banjo group called "Too Far Gone".

A solo vocalist act in the show, Marc Bailey commented, "It was great to be up on stage performing to the audience. I perform with Singing Cadets all the time but this was a different type of performance—just me and my songs."

The show concluded with a special act, the Cottonbowl Shuffle, as the judges tallied the votes. "We just wanted to have a little fun," said senior Mark Giltner, the Domingo Bryant of the shuffle.

PARENTS' WEEKEND AT A&M

Visit

A tradition since 1925, Parents' Weekend gives parents an opportunity to visit their children in a University setting.

*P*arents' Weekend, a traditional activity at Texas A&M since 1925 was held April 11-13. The weekend, which allows parents to visit their children in the campus setting, began Friday with various open houses and receptions held by student groups and college departments.

The Federation of Aggie Mothers' Clubs were in full gear with meetings and their annual Boutique held in Rudder Exhibit Hall.

The evening ended with a bang as MSC Variety Show had a full crowd in Rudder Auditorium with various student acts being performed. RHA Casino drew a large crowd as students and parents filled the MSC to gamble their money for prizes.

Saturday started another full day of open houses, receptions and tours. The Class of '86 presented their class gift at a Coffee with the Association of Former Students. The afternoon brought picnics and barbecues.

The TAMU Varsity Football team had an intersquad game in Kyle Field immediately following the recognition of the 1985 Parents of the Year, Mr. and Mrs. Hlavinka. The Singing Cadets ended the evening with their annual Spring Concert in Rudder Auditorium.

Sunday activities included the Corps Flower Pinning Ceremonies and the Parents' Day Awards Ceremony. The awards ceremony produced the announcement of the Gathwright and Buck Weirus Spirit Award winners along with the announcement of the 1986 Parents of the Year.

The Corps of Cadets Review and Awards Ceremony and Parson's Mounted Cavalry Performance and Final Review ended the weekend.

FIRST TUESDAY OF MONTH

Taps

Current students and faculty are recognized at the special Aggie tradition of Silver Taps.

*T*he first Tuesday of every month marks a special tradition for Texas A&M. It is the day of Silver Taps. Begun in 1898, the first Silver Taps was held for Lawrence Sullivan Ross with three rifle volleys in front of Old Main building.

Today, Silver Taps recognizes any current student or faculty member who has passed away since the previous month. The ceremony begins at 10:30 p.m. when the Ross Volunteer Firing Squad march in a slow cadence into the plaza area of the Academic Building and give a 21-gun salute. Afterwards, buglers atop the dome of the Academic building play "Silver Taps" three times. No words are spoken through the ceremony but the respect and honor felt for the deceased students prevails.

A&M TRADITION CONTINUES

Muster

Over 300 Musters were held worldwide this year with approximately a half of them in Texas.

*I*f there is an A&M man in one hundred miles of you, you are expected to get together, eat a little and live over the days you spent at the A&M College of Texas." This was a message in the March, 1923 Texas Aggie which later developed to what Aggies know today as Muster — a reunion of Aggies all over the world to have a roll call for any student or former student who has passed away since the previous year. A living comrade always answers "Here" for the individual during the roll call to show they are not forgotten.

Since the early 1900's, Muster has been held on April 21, the anniversary of the battle that won Texas' Independence. This year marked a special day for this anniversary since it was Texas's 150th year of independence. Due to the Texas

Sesquicentennial, April 21 was recognized as a state holiday and Aggies from all over were able to attend the largest Muster held on campus at G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Over 300 Musters were held worldwide this year with approximately a half of them in Texas. 120 were scheduled in 42 states and 44 were planned in 34 different countries including Czechoslovakia, Indonesia, and Kuwait.

The A&M Muster was combined with Silver Taps, the Brazos County A&M Club's Muster and the 50th year reunion for the class of '36. The speaker was A.W. "Head" Davis from the class of '45. Davis was the 1983 President of the Association of Former Students and currently worked as an attorney for the local firm of Davis and Davis Attorneys.

A WEEKEND TO END THE YEAR

Seniors

From Senior Bash to Senior Banquet, the weekend was a climax of four years.

"It feels great to be graduating," said senior Stephanie Ackles, "and senior weekend is a great time to party with your friends before everybody graduates and goes their own way."

The Senior Bash at the Texas Hall Fame started the weekend on April 24. The bash which lasted from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. featured a live band called "The Shoppe". "It was really crowded," said senior Beth Miller. "I couldn't believe all of the people there."

Ring dance pictures began Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium. Long lines once again prevailed as seniors waited to get their pictures taken in the middle of the ring.

The Senior Banquet held at the College Station Hilton started with a cocktail hour.

Clayton Williams Jr. was scheduled to speak although a personal injury required his replacement with Vice President of Student Affairs for Texas A&M, Dr. John Koldus.

After their dinner of London Broil Steak, seniors made their way to the Memorial Student Center and Rudder Exhibit Hall where the Ring Dance was held. The area was decorated with silver stars, balloons and champagne bottles. "It looked very elegant," commented senior Lee Alford.

The dance featured two bands — "Xavion" in the MSC Ballroom and "The Ed Gurlach Orchestra" in Rudder Exhibit Hall.

"It was the end to a great weekend," concluded senior Drew DeHaes on the Ring Dance.

Graduation has seniors saying their goodbyes to Texas A&M.

*F*riday May 9 and Saturday May 10 were the days that most seniors had been counting down since the beginning of the spring semester — graduation.

"After going through degree checks, ordering my diploma, sending off announcements, buying my cap and gown, and checking for red dots by my name, I was ready to graduate, said senior Craig L'Roy.

Graduation was divided into three ceremonies. Friday afternoon the colleges of Agriculture, Architecture and Environmental Design, Education, Graduate, and Medicine graduated followed by the Colleges of Engineering and Geosciences Friday evening.

Saturday morning the colleges of Business, Liberal Arts, Science, and Veterinary Medicine graduated. The announcement of the Brown-Rudder Outstanding Student Award was made at Saturday's commencement ceremonies. The award was presented to College of Business graduate Lisa Kastensmidt.

"I was so glad to walk across the stage," said senior Monique Alanis.

Following graduation students dispersed to various parties and get-togethers to celebrate the completion of their four, five, and sometimes even more years of hard work at Texas A&M.

"I'm really going to miss this place," concluded senior Traci Partridge. "It looks like it's out into the hard, rough world now."

Parents and friends look on proudly as the 1986 graduates file into G. Rollie White Coliseum for graduation ceremonies.

Tide Rolls in Aggie Opener

Over 74,000 fans braved a chilly September night to watch the Texas A&M season opener in Birmingham. The game was the first match-up between two former teammates, Jackie Sherrill and Ray Perkins of Alabama. Sherrill and Perkins played together at Alabama under the direction of the late Paul "Bear" Bryant.

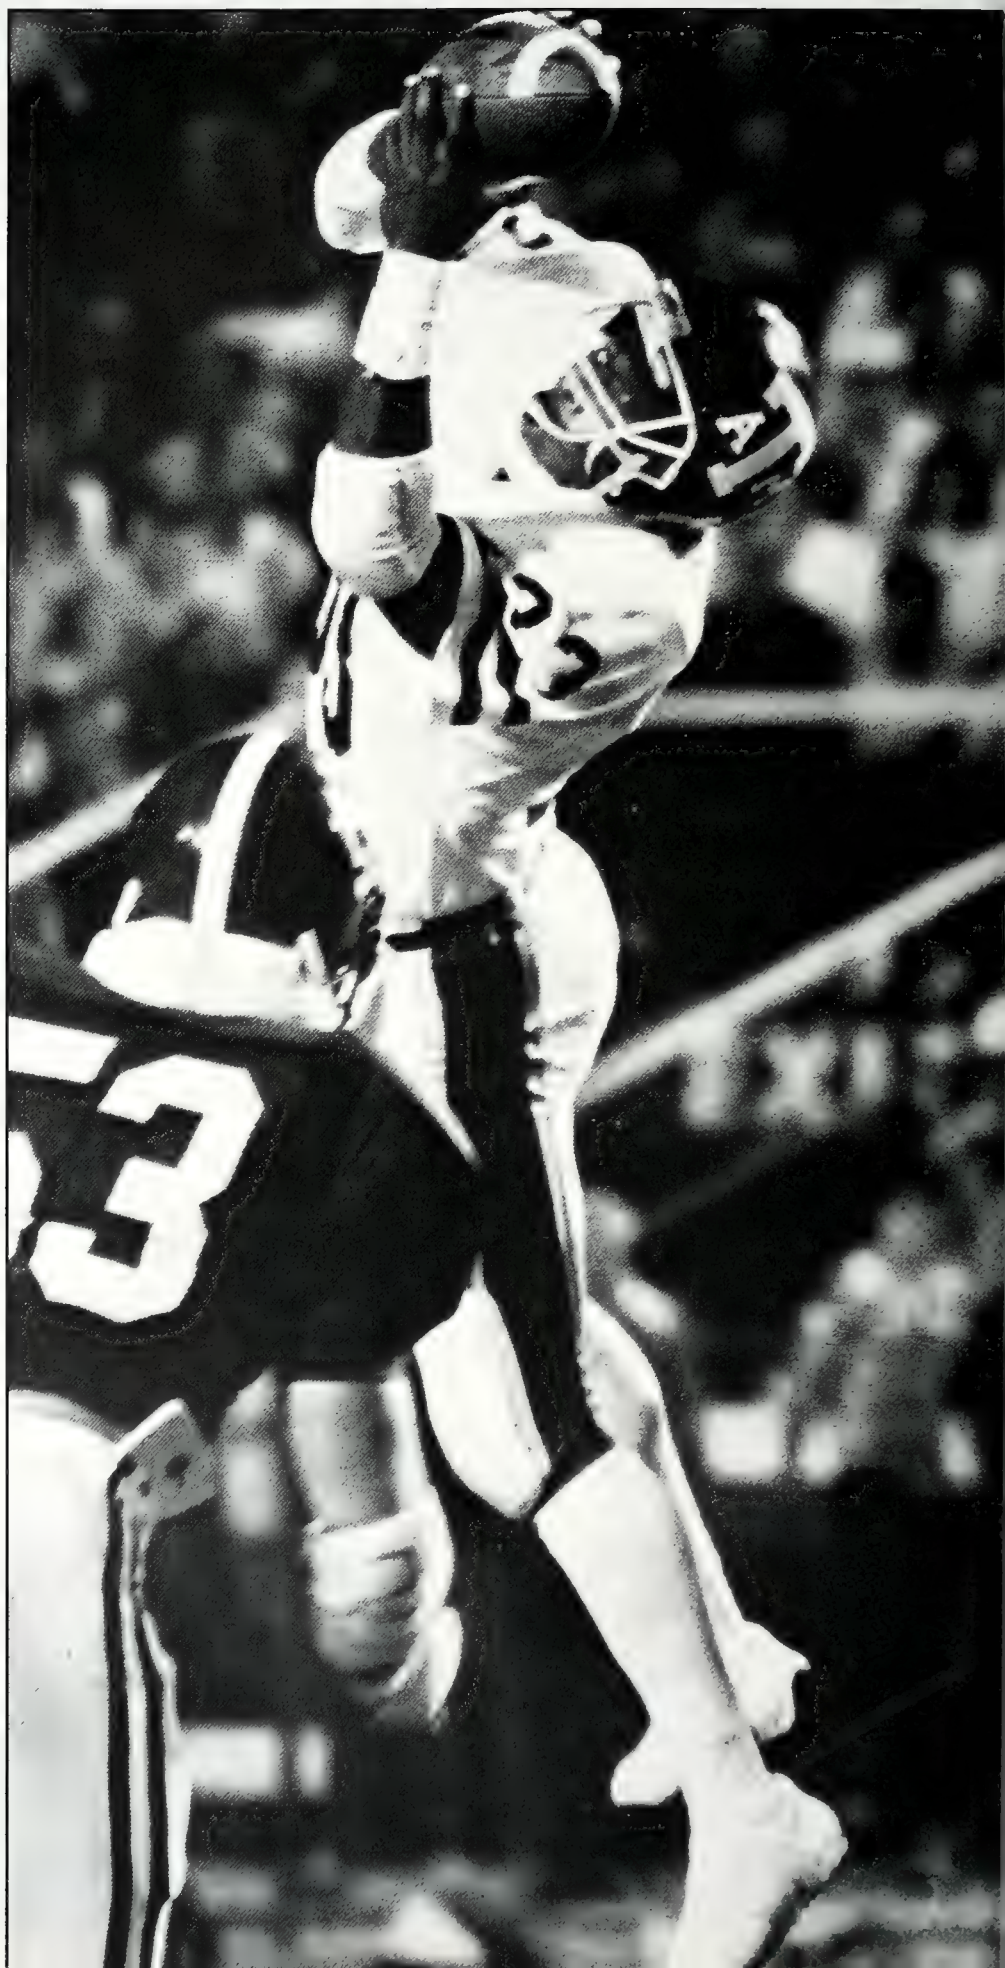

The Bear would have been pleased to see his former players coach such an exciting, hard-fought game. Alabama won the decision 23-10, but the game was much closer than the score indicated.

Sophomore quarterback Kevin Murray returned to action after the ankle injury that kept him on the sidelines for most of the 1984 season. Murray expertly moved the team, but a few costly mistakes and a tough Alabama defense kept the Aggies out of the end zone. A&M had more total yards of offense than Alabama, but several penalties either ruined touchdown opportunities or pushed the team out of field goal range.

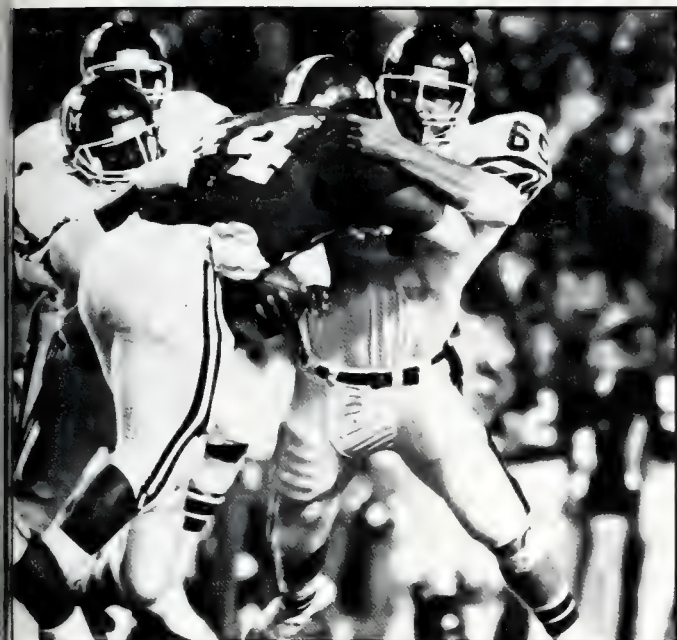

Toward the end of the fourth quarter, the Crimson Tide had the ball with a 16-10 lead and Murray and the Aggies were anxious to get the ball back to score the go-ahead touchdown. Alabama got another first down with under two minutes left, and it was apparent that the Aggies would not get the ball again. The Tide's final touchdown locked the door in a game the Aggies felt they should have won.

Anthony Toney, the senior fullback who scored the Aggies only touchdown, summed up the game when he said, "We should have won. We thought we were better than Alabama. The penalties just hurt us."

FOOTBALL

Ags Romp in Home Opener

The first home game for Texas A&M in 1985 gave the Aggies a chance to patch up the holes in their game plan they found in the previous week's loss to Alabama. The patches held tight as the Aggie offense piled up 539 total yards to easily defeat the Northwest Louisiana Indians 31-17. The Aggies made a few mistakes, but their goal for the week was to overcome the off-field problems and concentrate on winning a football game.

The off-field problems circled around an allegation that sophomore quarterback Kevin Murray had received some illegal payments from an athletic booster. Coach Sherrill asked the NCAA to investigate the matter.

Murray showed no effects of the allegations bothering him on the field. Murray shared quarterback duty with sophomore Craig Stump, but led the Aggies on all three touchdown drives. Murray finished the day 10 for 15 for 140 yards.

Although the passing game was on target, the main offensive force in the contest was the running game. Junior Rodger Vick rushed for 74 yards and sophomore Keith Woodside added 97 yards. The spotlight, however, was on senior Anthonoy Toney who rushed for 106 yards and had touchdown runs of 2, 1 and 4 yards. Toney and junior Eric Franklin, who had three field goals for the day, combined for 29 of the Aggies 31 points.

The Aggies defense dominated the Indians for most of the game. NELU's only touchdowns were both a result of roughing-the-kicker penalties.

Aggies set record in Tulsa Win

After facing three other Southwest Conference teams, the Tulsa Golden Hurricane came to Kyle Field to meet the Aggies and finish their SWC tour. Tulsa had lost two games in a row and was missing several key players due to injuries. The Aggies didn't help matters and crushed the Golden Hurricane 45-10.

Their offensive output of 702 yards was a new school record and the second highest total in Southwest Conference history. Every part of the Aggie machine was in working order as they cruised to the impressive victory.

Sophomore Kevin Murray did another fantastic job leading the team. He started the game on a sour note, however, and threw an interception the first time he dropped back to pass. He soon improved and finished the day completing 12 of 19 passes for 309 yards and four touchdowns. Two of the touchdown passes were to senior Jeff Nelson who led all receivers with eight catches for 130 yards.

The Aggies showed-off their ballanced attack and proved that they could move the ball on the ground as well as through the air. The offensive line made it a very long day for the Hurricane defense as they blew off the line to make holes in the running backs who piled up 346 yards. Junior Rodger Vick was the games leading rusher with 134 yards to his name.

The defense also played very well, holding Tulsa to just one early touchdown and recovering four fumbles.

It's About Time, Tech Falls!

While under the reign of Head Coach Jackie Sherrill, Texas A&M had always had trouble with the Texas Tech Red Raiders. A Sherrill-coached team had never beaten the Red Raiders, and the team desperately wanted to change this statistic in 1985. The Aggies started their Southwest Conference season on a high note by defeating Texas Tech, 28-27, before a standing-room-only crowd in Lubbock.

The Aggie offense was again in top form. The offense seemed to have had no problems moving the ball, scoring almost at will, but the Red Raiders kept coming back. Texas A&M rolled up 200 yards on the ground and 181 yards in the air. The team was led by sophomore quarterback Kevin Murray, who completed 14 of 20 passes, and junior Rodger Vick, who rushed for 135 yards.

The Raiders scored as easily as the Aggies and kept the lead bouncing back and forth. But, the indecisiveness of Tech's coaching staff proved to be very costly in the contest between two almost evenly-matched teams. The Raiders drove 30 yards in the final moments of the game to come within one point of the Aggies. The Tech coaches couldn't seem to decide between kicking an extra point to tie the game or going for the two-point conversion to the win.

The lack of a quick decision earned Tech a five-yard delay of game penalty. Tech now had eight yards to go for the win, but the Aggie defense had no plans of letting them in the endzone. A heavy pass rush forced Tech's quarterback to throw an incomplete pass, the Aggies escaped with the win, and Texas A&M added a victory to their stat book, the first over Texas Tech in four years.

Aggies balanced effort buries Cougars

The Aggies began their Southwest Conference home schedule with an outstanding game which proved to be just a glimpse of what was to come for the Ags at home in 1985. The 43-16 win was the Aggies second SWC win without a loss and their fourth win in a row, their largest winning streak since 1978.

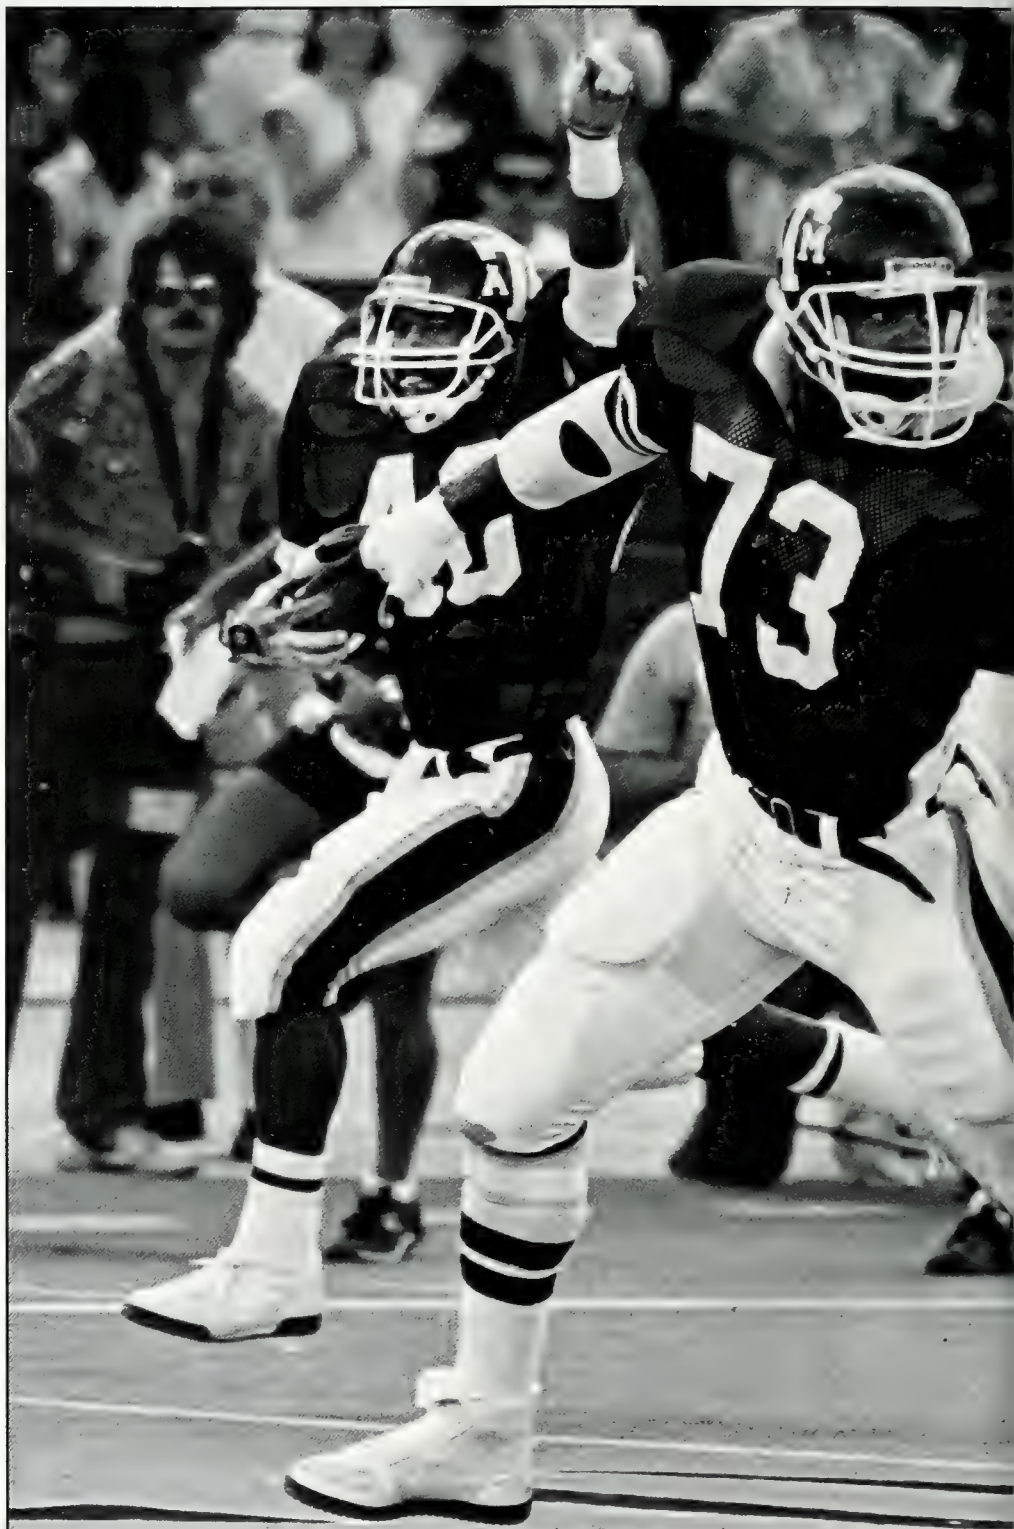

The Houston Cougars, last year's Cotton Bowl representative, jumped out to a nine point advantage in the first six minutes and scored one other touchdown as the fourth quarter closed, but everything in between belonged to the Aggies.

The 43 points scored by A&M was the most the team had ever scored against Houston. The performance featured the excellent punt returns of Jimmie Hawkins who danced through the Cougar defense for 119 yards and returned an intercepted pass 32 yards for a score. Fullbacks Rodger Vick and Anthony Toney combined for 141 yards on the ground and quarterback Kevin Murray went to the air for 169 yards on 14 completions.

The defense, however, was again the impressive powerhouse. The Cougar's offense, during the second and third quarters, managed only one first down and net total yardage of minus five. Effective blitzing held Houston's quarterback to just five completions in 19 attempts and resulted in a sack in the endzone and two points for linebacker Dana Batiste. The Cougars could grind out only 201 yards of total offense. 80 of these on the last scoring drive.

The win improved A&M's overall record to 4-1, while dropping Houston to 1-4.

Baylor Stops Aggie Offense Attack

Although Texas A&M's game with the Baylor Bears was early in the season, it was very important. The Bears were playing the best football in the Southwest Conference and beating them would give the Aggies a large dose of momentum and the SWC lead. A&M played what could have been their worst game of the year and limped out of Waco with a 20-15 loss.

The same Aggie offense that rolled up the score with ease, just one week earlier against Houston, couldn't manage to score a touchdown against Baylor. The only scoring came from three Eric Franklin field goals and a 40-yard interception return by saftey Kip Corrington. Despite the lack of offense, the Aggies had a 15-14 lead late in the game and could have won.

The Bears had the ball and it appeared that the Aggies had stopped them when third down came up and Baylor needed 25 yards to make a first down. Much to the surprise of the sold-out stadium, the Bears completed a long pass for the first down and went on to score the winning touchdown.

Minutes later the Aggies stopped the Bears again, but a questionable roughing-the-kicker penalty against A&M gave the ball back to Baylor. The Bears ran out the clock and as the players watched the final seconds tick away, Baylor was celebrating with the SWC lead.

Balanced Attack Rolls Over Rice

The much-improved Rice Owls and the Texas A&M Aggies delighted a modest Rice Stadium crowd of 41,000 with a football game that gave a new meaning to the words "wide open". The two teams combined for 10 touchdowns and almost 800 yards of total offense.

A few big plays by the A&M defense kept the game from being too close. The Aggies intercepted four passes, two by Domingo Bryant, and recovered two fumbles. These defensive heroics allowed the Aggies to escape with a 43-28 Southwest Conference win, their third of the season.

The Aggie offensive trademark for 1985 seemed to be achieving the perfect balance between yards gained on the ground and in the air. The Rice game proved to be no exception. The Aggies gained 228 yards passing, led by Kevin Murray who completed 16 passes, including a touchdown toss to Shea Walker. The A&M ground game piled up 229 yards, led by Anthony Toney who gained 116 yards and ran for two touchdowns. Rodger Vick also added two scoring runs.

A&M's success moving the ball was largely due to the play of an outstanding offensive line. They constantly overpowered Rice and allowed the men with the ball to score with ease. The Aggies showed that a great offense doesn't always need a great defense to back them up, but it is nice to know that they're around.

Last Minute FG nails SMU

The Texas A&M Aggies had an undefeated home record and their first top twenty ranking in four years to protect when the Mustangs from Southern Methodist University came to town. The past two meetings with SMU resulted in heart-breaking losses for A&M and the high-powered Aggies of 1985 were ready to end the six year winning streak of the team from Dallas.

With only 1:46 left in the game, place-kicker Eric Franklin controlled the emotions of every fan in Kyle field and millions watching on national TV. The Aggies were down 16-17 when Franklin, who earlier missed an extra point, prepared for the 48 yard field goal. His kick was just long enough to put the Aggies ahead. Moments later a Kip Corrington interception sealed the A&M win.

For the most part, the contest was an exiting, yet sloppy football game. Neither of the teams had much success moving the ball. A&M's problem was constant penalties and turnovers and SMU's was the stubborn Aggie defense.

The Aggies did hold the Mustangs and the league's leading rusher, Reggie Dupard. Du-pard was limited to only 69 yards on 19 carries and was easily overshadowed by the A&M running backs. Anthony Toney rushed for 117 yards on 21 carries and Keith Woodside added 104 on 12 carries.

With A&M's record standing at 6-2, they remained in race for the SWC championship and have almost guaranteed a post-season bowl bid, the first in Coach Jackie Sherrill fourth season at Texas A&M.

Defense Shuts Down Razorback Wishbone

The Arkansas Razorbacks came to Kyle Field with a #9 national ranking, the Southwest Conference lead and one of the best wishbone offenses in the country. After giving up four turnovers and being held to their lowest yardage output of the year, they left making new plans for New Year's Day. The Aggie's 10-6 victory knocked the Razorbacks out of the Cotton bowl picture and strengthened their own chances of being in Dallas on January 1.

The Aggie defense played a fantastic game and covered for the offense who had a hard time finding the endzone. Domingo Bryant recovered two fumbles, one leading to the game's only offensive touchdown. The fumble was set up by an earth-shaking hit on a Arkansas running back by cornerback Darrell Austin.

Moments later Kevin Murray connected with Rodger Vick for an 18-yard TD pass. That score and an earlier Eric Franklin field goal gave the Aggies a 10-0 lead that they kept for most of the game. With three minutes remaining, the Razorbacks recovered a blocked punt in the endzone for their only score.

Arkansas knew a tie would also eliminate them from the Cotton Bowl race and decided to attempt a two-point conversion. The Aggie defense again came to life. Linebacker Todd Howard stopped the ball handler on the line of scrimmage to leave the score unchanged and improve the Aggies record to 7-2.

Aggies Blow past TCU Horned Frogs

The outcome of the Texas A&M's football game vs. Texas Christian University was not weighing heavy on very many Aggie's minds. The Aggies were on the verge of a showdown with the University of Texas with a berth to the Cotton Bowl going to the winner. Beating TCU wouldn't help them achieve this goal, in fact, the Aggies could lose and be in the same situation.

The Aggies were screaming "Hook 'em Horns" all week because the only way that A&M could be eligible for the Cotton bowl was for Texas to beat Baylor on the same day as the TCU game. Texas was kind enough to do just that and the Aggies showed their appreciation by soundly defeating the Horned Frogs 53-6.

Texas A&M combined the wide-open offensive attack featured in the Houston and Tulsa wins with the stubborn defense that brought them victory against SMU and Arkansas. The result was a game so one-sided that TCU, who finished the conference season winless, would have loved to quit at half-time.

Sophomore quarterback Kevin Murray had an easy time picking apart the TCU defense. He completed 15 of 22 passes for 246 yards including touchdown tosses to Keith Woodside, Jeff Nelson and Shea Walker. Anthony Toney rushed for 81 yards with two touchdowns and Ira Valentine ran for 71 yards and added one touchdown.

The Aggies now 8-2, got plenty of practice running up the score for the UT game. They hoped to do the same next week and compliment the 37-12 romp of 1984.

Aggies Crush Texas to Claim SWC Title

Head Coach Jackie Sherrill celebrated his 42nd birthday on Thanksgiving and he received a gift from his players that he will never forget. The Aggies scored 42 points against the Texas Longhorns to bring the Southwest Conference Championship to College Station and send the Aggies to the Cotton Bowl for the first time in eighteen years.

The Aggies played a fantastic game of almost mistake-free football and everything went wrong for the Longhorns, including the twelfth man of Texas A&M. A record crowd of 77,607 jammed Kyle Field and made so much noise that the sound is probably still ringing in the ears of the Texas players.

The Aggie defense shut down the Longhorns and held them to just three points in the first three quarters of the game. The Texas quarterbacks could only complete 11 of 31 passes and they were sacked six times. The Aggies also intercepted four passes and recovered two fumbles.

The perfect combination of air and ground yardage was again pulled off by the Aggie offense. The running backs totaled 183 yards and the passing game netted 185 yards, including three touchdown passes by quarterback Kevin Murray.

The 42-10 final score was the biggest Aggie win ever over a Texas team and made last years 37-12 romp look like a close game. If the Aggies make this type of blowout an annual affair, we could have a new tradition on our hands.

Auburn falls in Cotton Bowl Blowout

The dream came true and the day finally arrived. The entire country had its eyes on the Aggies and their Cotton Bowl opponents, the Auburn Tigers led by Heisman Trophy winning running back Bo Jackson. Everybody from the Las Vegas linesmakers to the CBS-TV commentators picked Auburn to win and the game to be the "Bo Jackson show".

After a slow start, Texas A&M came on strong to blow away Auburn 36-16. The Aggies had featured a wide-open offense and a stubborn defense all year and decided not to change things on New Year's day.

Quarterback Kevin Murray set a Cotton Bowl record with 292 yards passing. His top receivers for the day were Ron Bernstine, with 6 catches for 108 yards, and Keith Woodside, who had three receptions for 88 yards. The ground game was also superb and the fullback duo of Anthony Toney and Roger Vick caught more of the country's attention than "whats-his-name."

The Aggie defense, with the help of the 12th man who actually numbered 73,137, came up with the game's most memorable plays. On two consecutive possessions, the Aggie defense stopped the top running back in the nation on fourth-down plays and kept Auburn out of the endzone and off of the scoreboard. Two Domingo Bryant interceptions aided the cause to keep the game one-sided.

The Aggies ended the season ranked sixth in the nation and Head Coach Jackie Sherrill called the victory "the biggest win of my career."

Murray Leads Record Breaking Offense

The 1985 Texas Aggies set new school records for total yards, yards per game, total plays and first downs. Sophomore quarterback Kevin Murray deserves most of the credit for leading the team to a 10-2 record. Murray set a school record for completion percentage and became the second leading passer in school history. He was named Southwest Conference offensive player of the year and All-SWC. Anthony Toney and Rodger Vick had a fantastic year sharing duty as fullback. They combined for 1609 yards and 20 touchdowns. Toney finished his career at A&M and was named All-SWC. Vick will be back for his senior year and was named to the All-SWC second team.

Jeff Nelson made his senior year his best ever. The SWC leading receiver also became the A&M record holder for career receptions with 91. Nelson's 51 catches in 1985 was the second best ever for a season and helped him earn All-SWC honors.

Jackie Sherrill expected many great things from Doug Williams and the senior lineman didn't let him down. Williams was the main element in an offensive line that made the difference in many of A&M's victories. He was named to the All-American and All-SWC teams. Randy Dausin also earned All-SWC honors for his performance on the offensive line.

Holland and Bryant lead Aggie Defense

The Aggie defense did a great job making the best offensive players look bad. Junior linebacker Johnny Holland was the star of the 1985 defense. Holland totaled 150 tackles for the year and was always in the center of the action. He was named All-American and All-SWC. Holland was also named AP defensive player of the year.

A great defense can only have one player of the year, right? Wrong, Domingo Bryant was named the UPI defensive player of the year. Bryant finished the regular season with four interceptions, 10 tipped passes and 79 tackles. He returned two passes for touchdowns and had two more thefts in the Cotton Bowl. Bryant, a senior defensive back, was also named to the All-SWC team.

Sophomore Kip Corrington was another member of the All-SWC pass stealing backfield and led the team with five interceptions. Corrington was also a star in the classroom. His 3.94 GPA earned him a spot on the Academic All-American team.

Junior Larry Kelm was often overlooked by reporters as a top linebacker, but not by opposing running backs. Kelm led the team in tackles with 151 and was named All-SWC. Sophomore Sammy O'Brient, Junior Rod Saddler and Junior Todd Howard, who led the team in quarterback sacks, were also named to the All-SWC team.

Aggies Soar to No. 10 in Polls

The Texas A&M volleyball team ascended to new heights, finishing the season with a 26-8 record and being ranked as high as No. 10 in the nation. The spikers also saw a dream come true when they received a NCAA tournament bid.

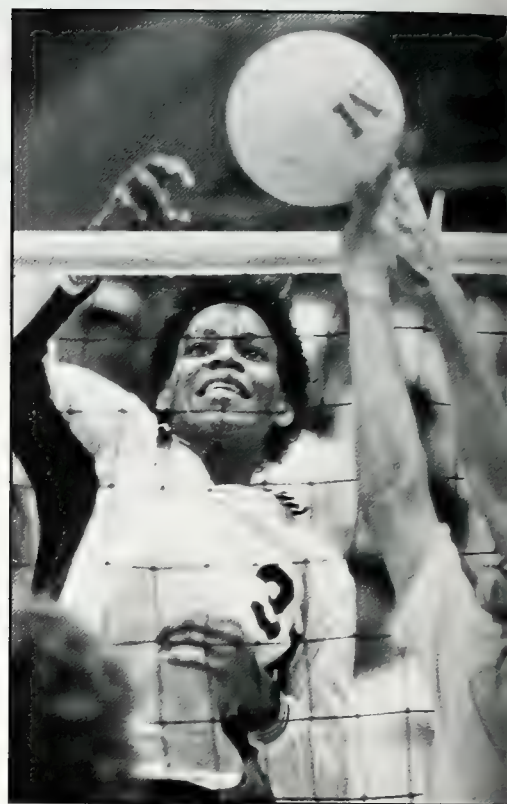

The Aggies, who had 13 returning players, escalated to No. 10 after upsetting No. 9 Purdue 12-15, 15-12, 15-9, 9-15, 17-15. After a tug-o-war like first four games, that win looked like it might slip away with Purdue ahead 14-7. The A&M spikers, led by Margaret Spence and Stacey Gildner, held off several match points and chipped away at the Boilmakers' lead.

The Aggies didn't manage to capture the win on the first or second match point. On the third, a Purdue spike went out of bounds, giving A&M the win.

"It does happen," A&M Coach Terry Condon said, "but I don't think I've ever seen anyone come back after being down 14-7 to a team like Purdue. To tell you the truth, I didn't think we would do it. They just believed in themselves.

Aggies Capture NCAA Bid

By Susan Clark

After the disappointment of not receiving a NCAA tournament bid last season, the Texas A&M volleyball team earned a chance to extend their season when they received a NCAA tourney bid. This would mean a chance to redeem themselves at G. Rollie White Coliseum after a loss to University of Texas.

In the first round of tournament play, A&M beat the University of Texas-Arlington 15-6, 11-15, 16-14, 8-15, 15-10. The Aggies came out with guns ablazing in the first game but laid back in the second and ran into trouble in the form of the Mavericks' Ana de Oliveira and Katie Weismiller.

"I think the problem was a few people were thinking a little too far ahead," Coach Terry Condon said, "I stressed that a lot all week — do not look past UTA — but they did."

The Aggies managed to get things moving again toward the end of the third game but ran into the same problems they had in the second game in the fourth which they lost 8-15.

With the Aggies leading 9-8 in the final game, they decided to turn on the power with Stacey Gildner and Margaret Spence delivering the final blows.

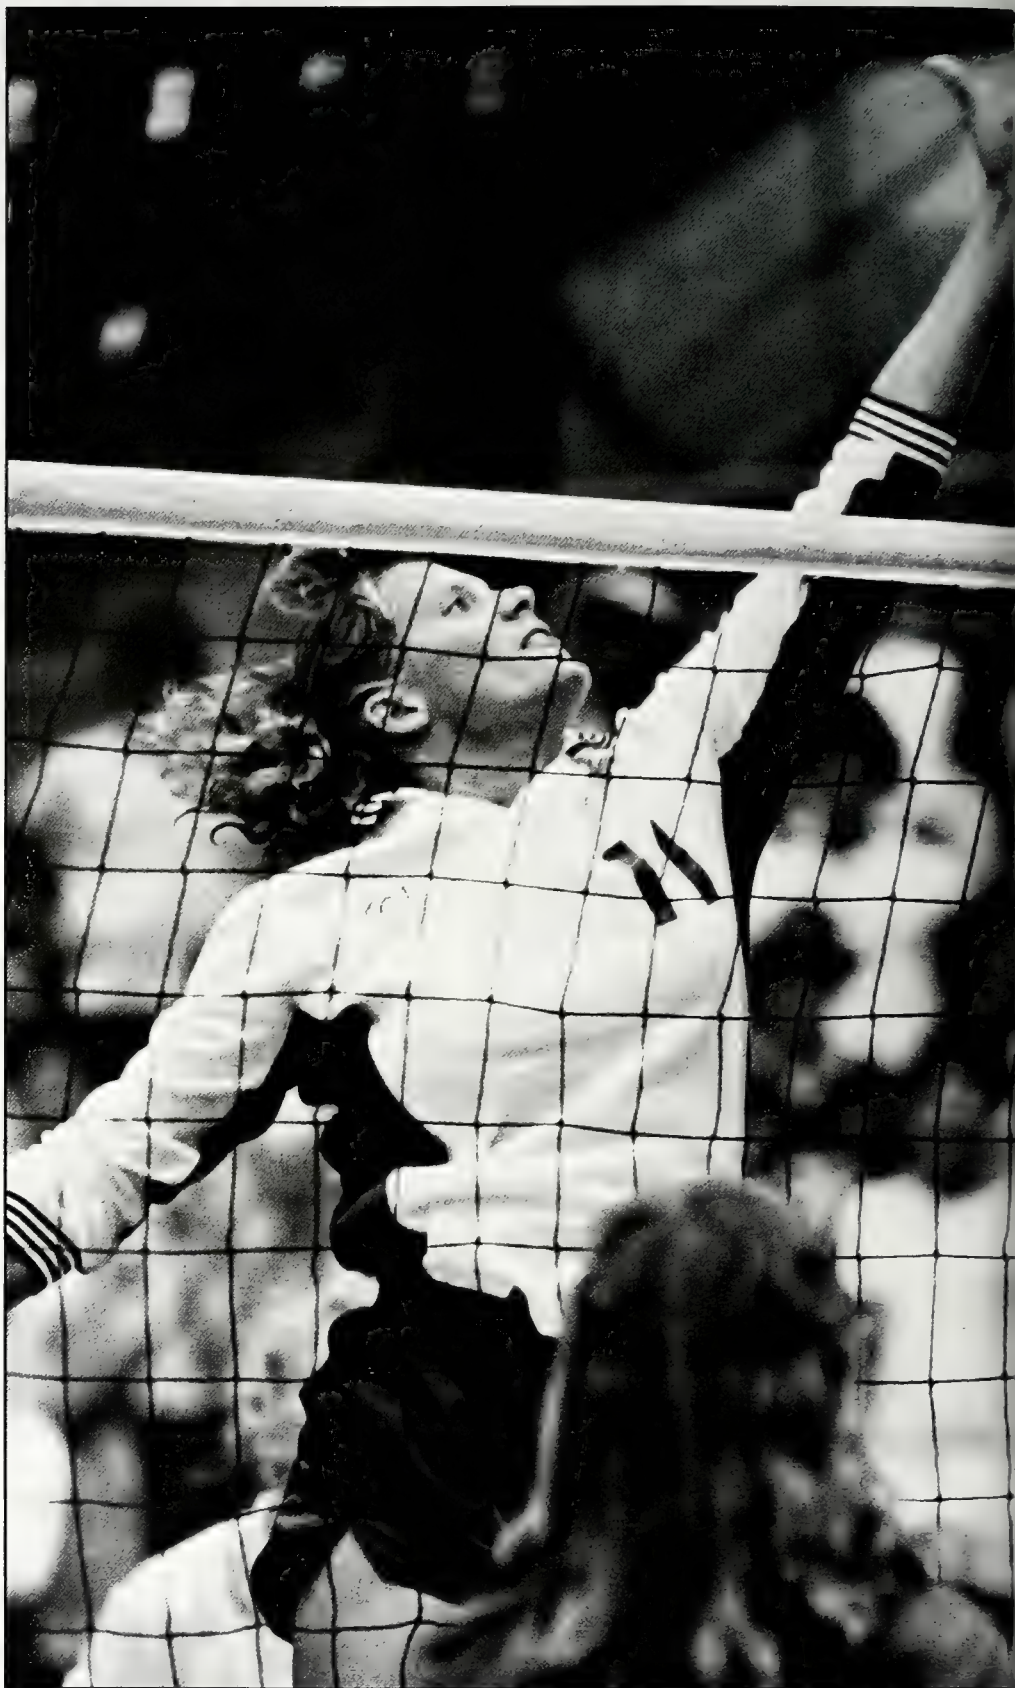

Beating UTA gave the Aggies another chance at Texas.

But the tournament ended soon for the Aggies. The Longhorns smashed the Aggies quickly 15-6, 15-8, 15-3, the Aggies worst loss ever to Texas.

"By the middle of the second game, I knew we were making too many mistakes to stay with them," said Lesha Beakley, a senior. "I knew we were in trouble. They were just dominating us. And with all the mistakes we were making, we were making it very easy for them."

The loss was probably more disappointing for Sheri Brinkman and Lesha Beakley because they ended their college volleyball careers against Texas, the team that had prevented them from reaching the SWC championship 4 years in a row.

But they can look back to the No. 10 national ranking and getting to the NCAA tournament with pride, knowing that they had reached new heights in A&M volleyball.

CROSS COUNTRY

Looking toward the future

The 1985-86 school year brought on a new twist for the Texas A&M Cross Country program. Head Coach Ted Nelson had the combined duties of coaching both the men's and women's teams.

At the beginning of the year Coach Nelson was very optimistic about the chances of the women's team, who are rebounding from last year's season-ending injuries. However, for the men, with the loss of Auturo Barrios, last year's star performer, due to eligibility and Huey Treat, redshirted for the year, Nelson felt the men would not be a very strong contender in the Southwest Conference race.

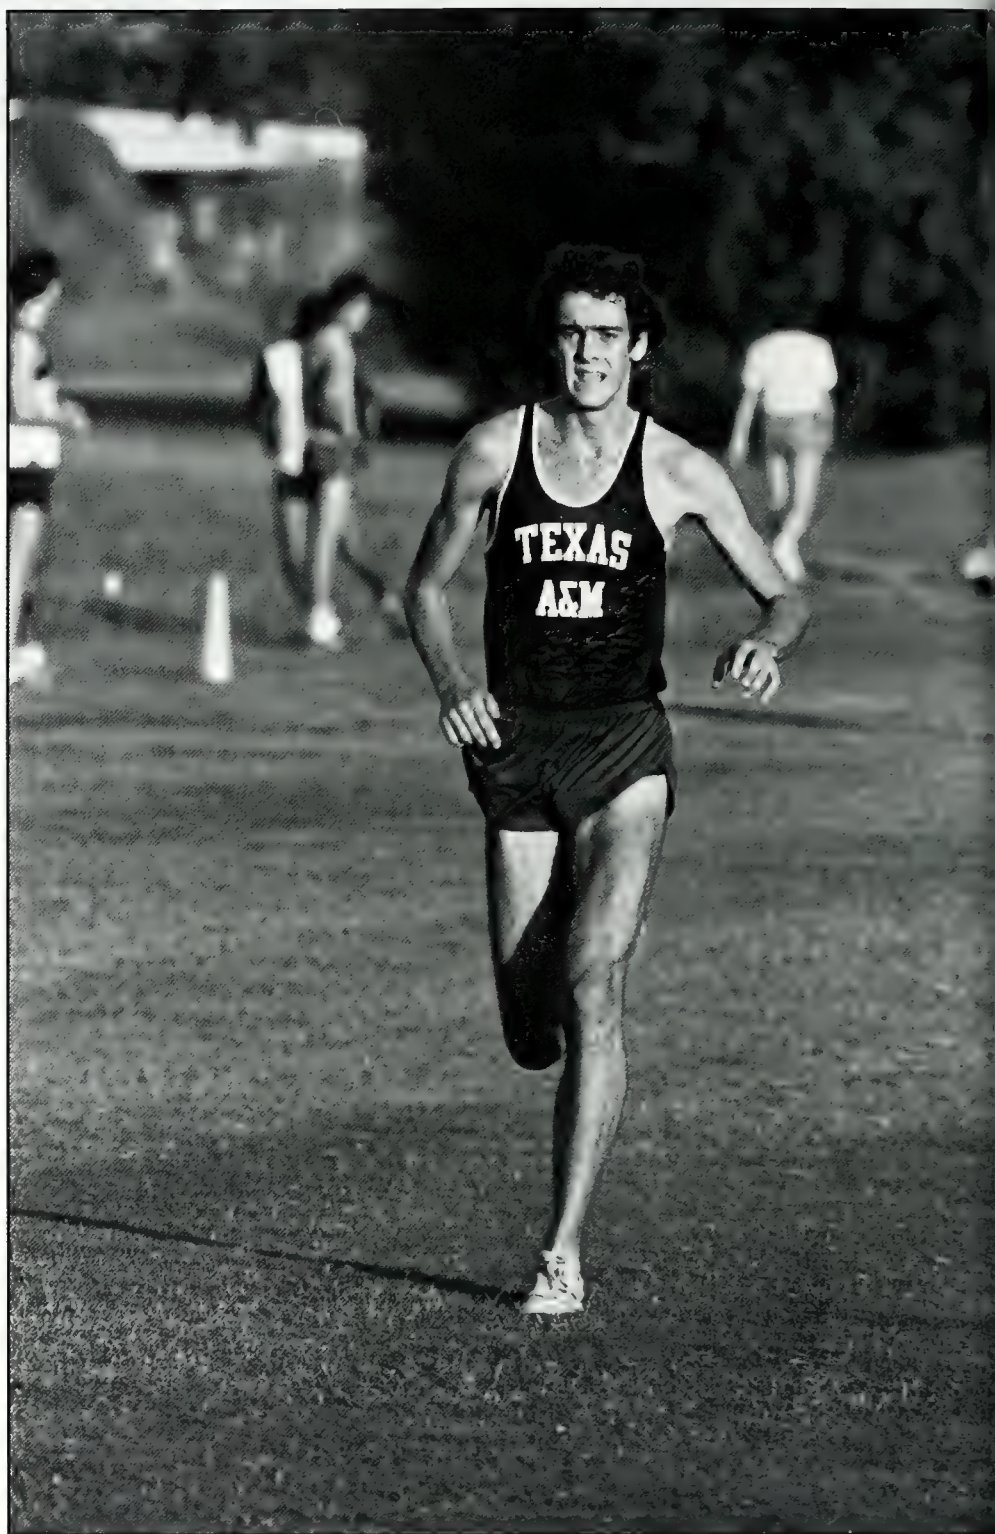

The 1985-86 season did produce a few surprises despite the losses of Barrios and Treat — surprise like freshmen Calvin Garzinano and David Trevino. The two runners finished among the top ten in each meet the team attended this year. Trevino ended the season by finishing 38th in the Conference meet, the highest finish of all Aggie runners.

With a new coach and a new outlook, the women made their presence known throughout the season. The season proved quite successful for the women as the team placed in the top five of the final team standings in each meet attended.

During the year the two teams traveled to a number of meets which included the Baylor Invitational, U.T.S.A. Invitational, Texas Invitational, Aggie Invitational and the Southwest Conference meet. For the year, the men finished 8th in the Conference while the women finished 4th in Conference standings. Neither team had anyone to qualify for the NCAA Regional meet.

Reviewing the year Coach Nelson felt that both the men and women would field very strong teams in 1986. Both teams will be returning many outstanding runners along with the hope of recruiting some top runners in the off-season.

Record even in Nonconference action

The Texas A&M Basketball team played twelve non-conference games before the Southwest Conference season started. Many teams try to play several tough opponents in their nonconference games to get the team ready for the more important games in the conference A&M tried to do this in the 1985-86 season.

The Aggies played some good teams and some bad ones in the non-conference schedule, but it could be said that all of the top opponents we faced beat the Aggies and the A&M victories all came against weak teams.

A&M opened the season in the Summit in Houston against Alabama-Birmingham in the NIT Big Apple Tournament. They were a top 20 team and won the game in the final seconds by three points. The Aggies had nothing to be ashamed of. Other top teams that beat the Aggies were Tennessee (twice), Georgia Tech (#2 in the nation), Pittsburg and Lamar.

The Aggies won all four of their non-conference games at home, in fact they only lost one home game all year. They also beat Oral Roberts and Southern Mississippi on the road.

12-4 Record Wins SWC Title

The Aggies 12-4 Southwest Conference record was good enough to give them a tie for the championship, the sixth in the 23 year career of Head Coach Shelby Metcalf. This was also the sixth 20-win season for a Metcalf coached team.

The team started the SWC season strong by winning their first five games. Their first defeat came at the hands of the University of Houston. Just before that game, Houston Coach Guy Lewis announced his retirement after 30 years as their coach and the Cougars were just too tough to beat. The Aggies won their next three games to give them an 8-1 SWC record and a game and a half lead.

A&M then lost three in a row including the only loss of the year at home, a last second two-point loss to SMU. It appeared that the Aggies had let the title slip away, but they won their last four SWC games and with a little help from the University of Texas, they finished on top. TCU beat UT by one point in their final game to vault them into a three-way tie for first place with UT and Texas A&M.

In this championship season, the Aggies set new season records for field goal percentage (51%), assists (563), and blocked shots (70).

Aggies fall in Tourney Final

The Texas Aggies were the number one seed in the 1986 Southwest Conference Post-Season Classic in the Reunion Arena in Dallas. They had won four games in a row and won them by an average margin of over twelve points. The Aggies were on a roll.

In the first game the Aggies kept up their winning ways and blew away Arkansas 67-51. A&M had been routing the Razorbacks all year and this game was no exception. Winston Crite led the way with 22 points and ten rebounds. Marbury, Gilbert and Holloway also scored in double figures to get the tournament off on the right foot.

The second game of the tourney was a much closer battle. Both the Aggies and the Longhorns were playing all or nothing ball, they knew a loss could end their season. The play was typical of that sort of game with both teams committing too many turnovers and personal fouls, and the major emphasis being on the defense. Don Marbury led the team with 22 points and the Aggies won 55-47.

Texas Tech was fifth in the SWC, but was the defending tournament champs and knew an upset could be in the making. The Red Raiders played with more desire and fan support than the Aggies did and won the final game 67-63.

Don Marbury made his senior year the finest of his career. He started every game the Aggies played this year and scored in double figures in every game also. Marbury led the Southwest Conference in scoring with 21.8 points per game and set a new A&M record for most points in a season. He also shot 53% from the field, had 4.5 rebounds per game and was second on the team with 116 assists.

Jimmie Gilbert also had a fine senior year and improved vastly over last year. He had 12.1 points per game and averaged 7.3 rebounds. His 803 career rebounds put him fifth on the A&M all-time list. Gilbert also came just short of the single season field goal percentage record, he finished with 59.7%. Gilbert was drafted by the Chicago Bulls.

Winston Crite will be the Aggies top returner next season. The power forward finished with 13.3 points and 8 rebounds per game. He also led the team in blocked shots with 41, including a school record 6 in a game against TCU.

BASKETBALL

How bad is the SWC?

When the NCAA was handing out invitations to the 1986 Basketball Tournament, several of the Southwest Conference teams felt that they had a good chance of being invited. The SWC had three regular season tri-champions, all were 20-game winners, and each of these teams thought that they would be invited.

Most of the SWC and several members of the national media were shocked when the bids were given out and none of the SWC teams were invited. Tech, who won the SWC tournament, was the only representative of the conference. What was the reason? The NCAA stated that the SWC teams had too many losses against non-conference opponents and an overall weak conference.

As a whole the SWC won most of its non-conference games, but won little or none against top-20 teams or teams from "major" basketball conferences. Most of these games were played in neutral sites or at the other teams schools because the SWC has always had poor basketball attendance and other schools feel that they won't make any money playing here.

The situation may never improve and the SWC will always be labeled as a "minor" basketball conference unless the fans decide to change it with some better attendance figures.

Lady Ags Looking to the Future

The Texas A&M women's basketball team ended the season with a 16-13 record, a slight improvement from last season's record of 14-4.

With only four returning players, Coach Lynn Hickey undertook a massive recruiting job. She attracted six freshmen and four junior college transfers to the team.

When the Aggies beat Rice 90-62 in the first round of Southwest Conference play, all 14 players saw some action.

"Granted, we weren't playing the best team in the conference," Hickey said, "But, what was pleasing was that, at one time, we had three freshmen and one sophomore out there (on the court), so we're really talking about the future."

Freshman Donna Roper, who averaged 14.3 points through her first seven southwest conference games, is one of the promising new stars on the Aggie team.

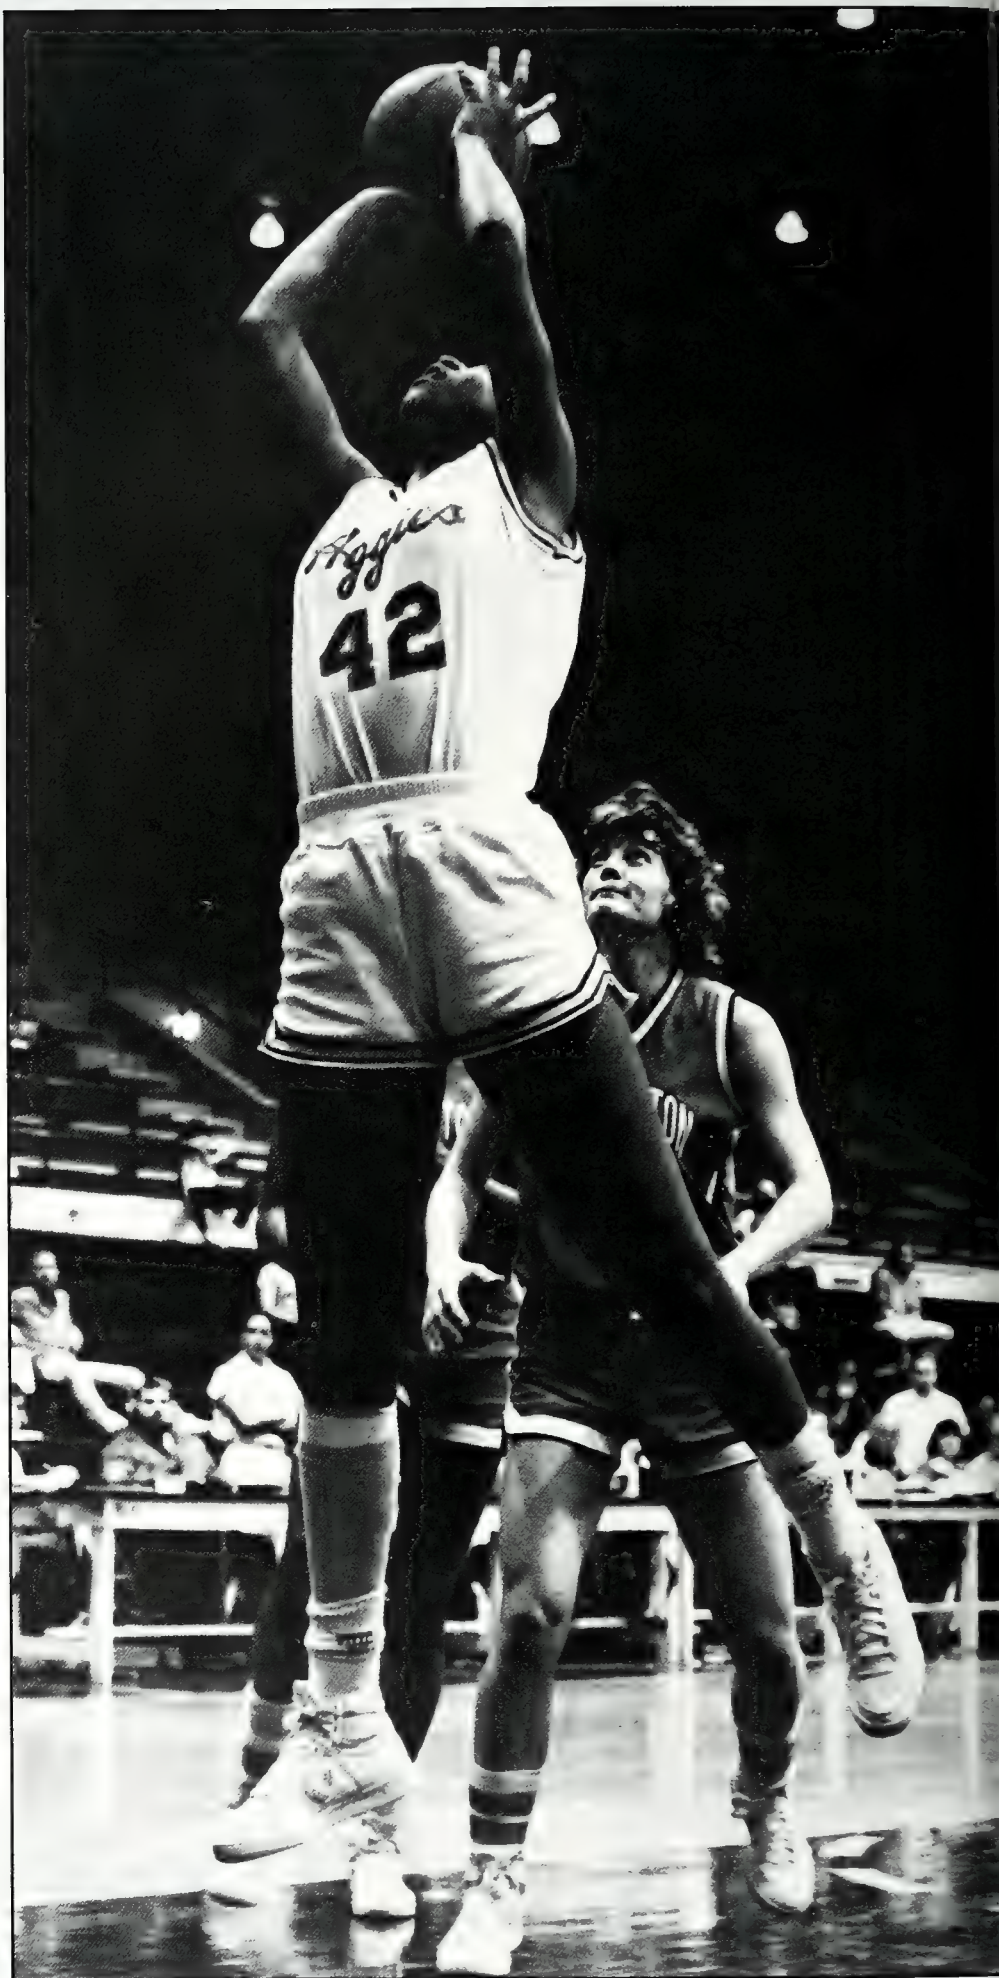

"Donna is one of the finest natural athletes I have ever coached," Hickey said. "And that's saying a lot because we have some very good players. As far as running, jumping and quickness, she has as much ability as any of the guards I have coached," Hickey added.

The Aggies played a confidence-building 91-74 game against Sam Houston State. Senior Lisa Langston, A&M's all-time leading scorer, scored 23 points and snagged nine rebounds. Forward Paula Crutcher did her share by scoring 20 points.

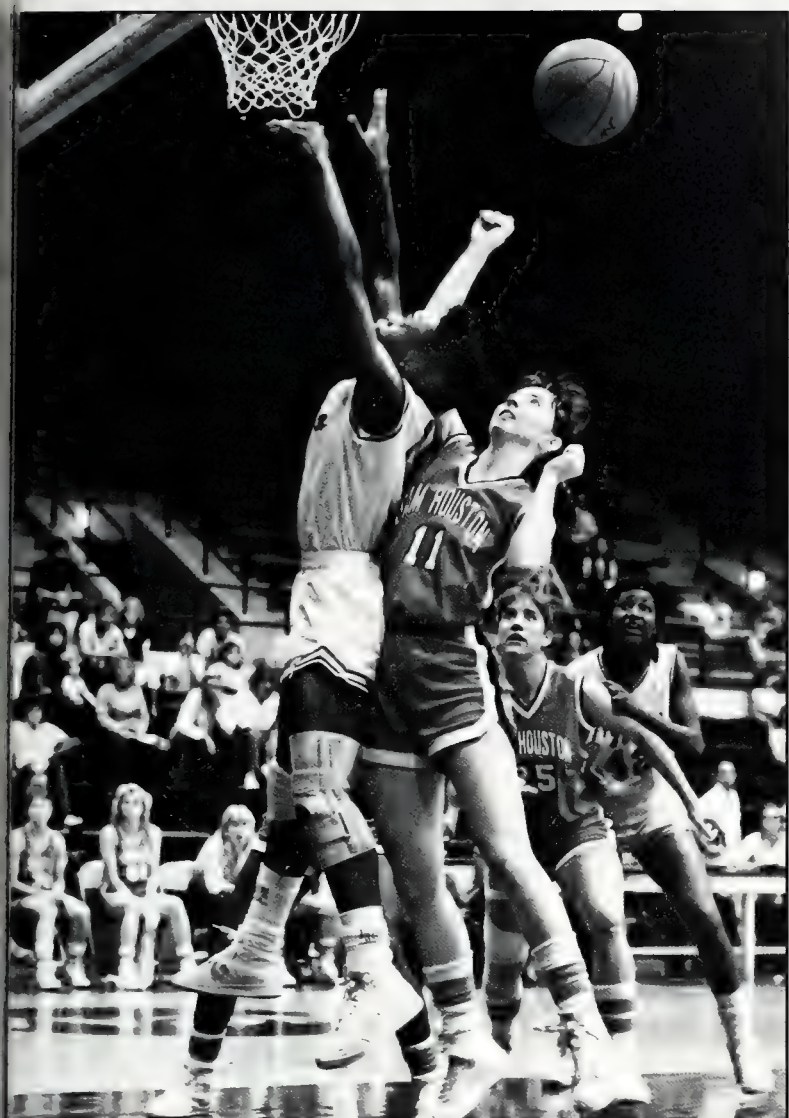

Hickey was concerned over her young team's confidence after their 5-4 conference start, but she seems to be pleased with the young Ags' progress.

"The main thing is that this time last year that game would have been a real struggle," Hickey said. "This year, we're disappointed it wasn't a 30-point victory. That's a big step."

Lady Ags cut short in SWC Tourney

The Lady Aggies, with a 9-7 conference record, won a fourth-place spot in the Southwest Conference Women's Post-Season Classic. Their stay in the tourney was short-lived. The Aggies had a repeat of last year's disappointment when Houston beat the Ags again in the first round of play. Last year, the Cougars won 84-72. This year they won 80-73.

The Lady Aggies split with the Cougars during the regular season, losing 80-75 in Hofheinz Pavilion and winning 71-70 in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Sonya Watkins, Houston's 6-1 senior center, set a tournament record with 37 points in the game.

An advantage Houston had over A&M was that they were a well-seasoned team.

"Houston is a senior group with a lot to prove," Hickey said. "We're so young and naive that we still don't know that you're not supposed to go out and beat a group like that."

But A&M finished the season with a 16-13 record, the first season over .500 for the Lady Ags since the '79-'80 season. They accomplished this with one senior, Lisa Langston and six freshmen. With this rate of success and the young talented players Hickey has to work with, A&M's women's basketball program has a bright future ahead.

SOCCER

Team Earns Top 20 Ranking

The Texas A&M Women's Soccer Team finished their second season of play as a Varsity level II sport. The level II designation places the team between an extramural team and with one full varsity status. The main difference between the two levels of varsity status is money. The Women's Soccer team receives no scholarships and is on a limited budget.

"The best soccer athletes in the country are in Texas," Coach Laura Johnston said. "If we had (athletic) scholarships we would be a national contender within a year or two." Without scholarships to aid in recruiting most of the athletes on the team play because they love the game and the intercollegiate competition.

A&M is the only Southwest Conference school with a varsity women's soccer team so the Aggies, who were ranked #19 in the country in a preseason poll, play teams from all over the country plus some local amateur club teams.

Johnston feels the team should improve that ranking and has four All-American candidates: Kim Clack, Pam Patak, Jenny Lawson and Denise Rowe.

SWIMMING

Swim Team has Fine Year

After finishing behind the University of Texas and Southern Methodist University at the Southwest Conference Meet, the 1986 Texas A&M Men's Swim Team was looking ahead to the NCAA Championships where the Aggies had four swimmers qualify for the national meet.

The Aggies were the 21st seeded 400-yard medley relay team. The relay consisted of Chris O'Neil, swimming the butterfly; Mike Kozlina, swimming the backstroke; Robert Bullock, swimming the breaststroke; and Eddie Altman, swimming the freestyle leg of the race.

O'Neil has won the butterfly the past two years at the SWC championships and he placed second in the nation in the event last year. Head Coach Mel Nash said that O'Neil probably is the favorite in the NCAA meet because he has the fastest time of the year and is in fewer races than the other top butterfly specialist.

Freshman Kozlina, who will be the Aggies top butterfly man next year because O'Neil is graduating, also qualified to swim in the race. He will also swim in the 100-yard backstroke, a race he won at the SWC finals setting a new A&M record.

RIFLERY

Pitts named Coach of the Year

The 1986 Texas A&M Riflery Team had another fine season and showed their domination over local teams by winning the Southwest Conference title. The team competes on the NCAA level but doesn't give out any scholarships. They are generally accepted as the best non-scholarship team in the country and are only beaten by schools where the sport has a much bigger following, such as the military academies.

GOLF

Women Place Fourth in SWC Tourney

After winning the Southwest Conference last year, the 1986 Women's Golf team had everyone expecting that they would come up with a repeat performance this year. Losing their top two players didn't help matters but the women just didn't seem to be on target this season and came in fourth place at the SWC tournament at the Sweetwater Country Club in Houston.

"We started fourth and finished fourth," said Aggie Coach Kitty Holley. "It was an unusual tournament in that upperclassmen Angela Atkins and Fiona Conner just didn't play well. What's nice to see is that our freshmen and sophomores did play well."

Sophomore Hollie Frizzell led A&M to its fourth-place finish at 946 by shooting a final round 76, earning her a seventh-place individual award. Atkins, the team captain and only senior, finished her final collegiate tournament with a 239 and a good final round of 74.

TENNIS

Women, Alkio Win SWC Titles

The Texas A&M Women's Tennis Team won their first ever Southwest Conference Title. The women came into the tournament in second place in the conference, but strong play at the Courpus Christi tournament put A&M two points ahead of SMU and five points ahead of defending champions Texas, who had won the title three years in a row.

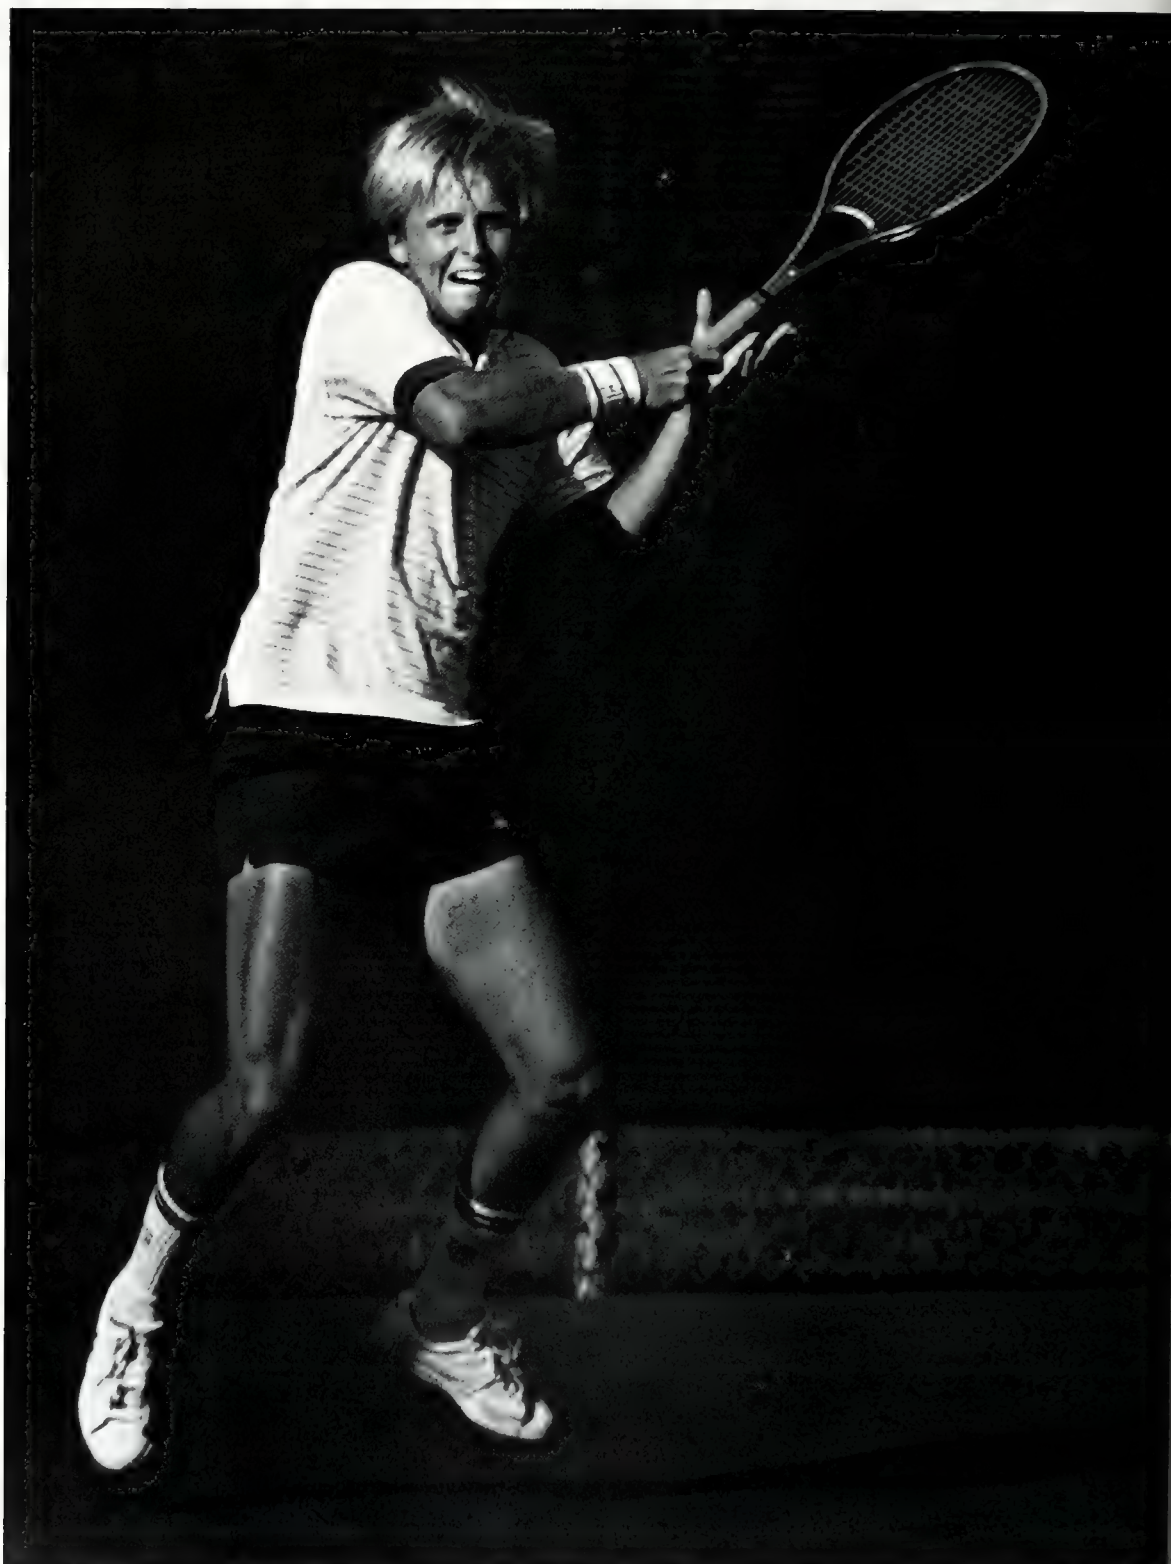

In the final day of competition, Gaye Lynne Gensler won the No. 3 singles title over SMU's Lynda Tate and Laura Lions captured the No. 6 title over SMU's Julie Baird.

Coach Bobby Kleinecke was especially happy to win the title because this was his first year to coach at the collegiate level. "Our girls showed a lot of guts at this tourney," he said. "Their best tennis was played here."

The Men's team finished fourth in the conference, but Kimmo Alkio became the first player in A&M history to win the No. 1 singles title at the SWC tournament.

MEN'S TRACK

Aggies shine in 1986

The Texas A&M men's track team began the 1986 outdoor season with high hopes of repeating and perhaps bettering their performances during the indoor season. The Aggies were the surprise team at the Southwest Conference meet as they pulled off a second place finish behind the meet champion Arkansas.

The Aggies were paced by very outstanding performances from one of the best track recruiting classes in quite awhile. The freshman accounted for fifty of the total sixty-one points tallied by the Aggies. Stanley Kerr and Randy Barnes proved to be the high-light of the freshman performances. Kerr won the sixty yard dash and qualified for the NCAA Indoor Meet while Barnes captured second in the shot with a throw of sixty three feet and one quarter inch.

The 1986 College Station Relays served as the debut event of the Frank G. Anderson Track and Field events center. The field included a collegiate division as well as a high school division. During the meet the Aggies garnered eleven first place finishes with a number of Aggies qualifying for the NCAA Meet. Later in the year the Aggies hosted the Texas A&M Relays and captured fifteen first place finishes at the meet.

Besides hosting the College Station Relays and the Texas A&M Relays, the Aggies also traveled to a number of other meets. These meets included the Rice Invitational, TSU Relays, Texas Relays, Baylor Invitational, Mt. Sac Relays in California and the Texas Invitational. The Aggies recorded strong performances in the each of the meets that they attended for the year.

Heading into the Southwest Conference Meet the coaching staff felt that Arkansas and Texas would be the teams to beat. Head Coach Thomas felt that the Aggies would have to be operating on all cylinders to overcome either of the two favored teams.

MEN'S TRACK

"Best recruiting class ever"

The Texas A&M men's track program has made major strides in past few years to position itself among the top track and field programs in the conference of the nation. To aid in their development, the Aggies debuted their new track and field complex this year. Last year the coaching staff hoped that the complex would become the major tool in swaying recruits to attend A&M.

Their wish was granted with perhaps one of the greatest recruiting classes ever assembled for track and field. The freshman stepped in and played major roles in the development of this year's team. Freshmen like Stanley Kerr and Randy Barnes helped the Aggies surprise everyone in the conference indoor meet. The freshmen accounted for fifty of the total sixty-one points the Aggies scored at the meet.

The pride of the recruiting class was evidenced in Randy Barnes, one of the top prospects in the shot put. In the College Station Relays Barnes threw the shot sixty-seven feet, seven and one quarter inches; at the time it was considered the best outdoor throw ever by a freshman. Barnes bettered this feat later in the season with a throw of seventy one feet, nine and a half inches; a world's best at the time.

Besides Barnes, the Aggies captured some of the state's best spring talent in Stanley Kerr and Floyd Heard. Along with the Gary Pervis and Archie Roberts they comprised the freshman 4 x 100 relay squad. The Aggies took gold in the area of the field events and distance running. In the high jump the Aggies took Kenny Burke, a high school All-American high jumper and Matt Dunn a promising distance runner.

The 4 x 100 meter relay team won the SWC title and finished 2nd in the nation at the NCAA Championships. The team is the fastest all freshmen team in collegiate history and the holder of the A&M record. To add to his accomplishments on the relay team, Floyd Heard also won the NCAA 200 meter title and is now considered one of the fastest men in the world.

The 1986 track season proved to be very successful in reviewing the performances of the freshman recruiting class. The coaching staff will be hard-pressed to field another class of this caliber in 1987 but with the new track complex and all the sports hype the Aggies received this year should make the recruiting a little easier.

WOMEN'S TRACK

Aggie Women still improving

The Texas A&M women's track program began the 1986 season with a new coach but a very familiar face; Head Track Coach Charlie Thomas took over the position succeeding Coach Bill Nix. Going into the season Coach Thomas felt that after the good recruiting year the Aggie women would be much more competitive in the 1986 season. The lacking ingredient for last year's team was that it did not have anyone competing in the field events. During the off-season recruiting, the Aggies managed to recruit Cassandra Perkins, Karen McMurray and Vernell Dunn all competing in either the shot put or discus.

During the year the Aggie women were very consistent in their performances in the meets the team attended. The distance team, considered one of the strong points of the team, was paced again this year by Becky and Beth Drees and Esther Dedrick. In the College Station Relays the Aggies finished 1-2-3 in the 5000 meter run with the Drees twins leading the way. Vernell Dunn captured first place in the shot put in the College Station Relays with a throw of forty-five feet, five and one quarter inches. Perkins and McMurray took first and third respectively in the discus. The relay team of Lisa Langston, Novaita Samuels, Judy Williams and Alexis Russell had one of its best performances of the year in the Texas A&M Relays. The relay squad won the 400 meter relay and the spring medleys.

In addition to competing in the two home events, the College Station Relays and the Texas A&M Relays, the team traveled to a number of other meets. These included the Rice Invitational, TSU Relays, Texas Relays, Baylor Invitational and the Texas Invitational. The Aggie women provided strong performances in each of the meets attended.

Going into Conference meet Coach Thomas felt that the women's team from Texas would be the team to beat. With some strong performances from the Aggie women Coach Thomas felt the Aggie would provide some good competition.

Aggies Have Another Great Year

The 1986 Texas Aggie Baseball season was started with high hopes after Head Coach Mark Johnson's debut year that ended with a team record 39 regular season wins. Thirteen lettermen returned from that team that set or tied 35 individual and team records.

The Aggies had a 25-16 non-conference record, which was the most non-conference games they had ever played. The wins and losses seemed to all come in bunches. After being swept early by McNeese State and Pan American, the record stood at 2-6. They put things together after that and won 14 of the next 15 games. Then the losses started again.

They lost two in a row to Mississippi State at Olsen Field and traveled to Hawaii for spring break where they lost 4 out of 5 games to the island teams of Hawaii and Hawaii-Hilo. In the remaining non-conference games, the Aggies went 8-3. All of these games came between SWC games and they were almost like days off from the tough SWC schedule and the team's quest for a conference championship.

Aggies Share Top Conference Spot

The Aggies started their 1986 Southwest Conference season with a three game series against the University of Houston in Olsen Field. They were optimistic to turn things around from a somewhat disappointing non-conference season. The Cougars were not very polite guests and pounded the Aggies 15-1. The Aggies decided that this would not be a good way to start the season and came back to crush UH 10-1 and 9-1 in the next two games.

In the next series, the Aggies and the Razorbacks traded shut-out wins and ended the series with a 5-2 Aggies win. Texas Tech hasn't been playing well against A&M and the Aggies figured this would be a good time to get revenue for the basketball loss in the SWC final. The Aggies easily swept the Red Raiders and outscored them 39-13 in three games. Baylor and Rice were also swept to give the Aggies 10 SWC wins in a row.

The Aggies traveled to Austin to face UT in a series that could have decided the conference champion. The Longhorns won all three of the close games and it looked as if the Aggies were out of it. However, Texas lost two of it's next three games and the Aggies swept TCU to give the Aggies their third major title of the year.

Olsen Field was the site of the tenth annual Southwest Conference Post-Season Baseball Tournament and the Aggies had the advantage after coming off a three game sweep of TCU and playing in their home stadium. The other three teams in the double elimination tournament were Texas, Baylor, and Arkansas.

The Aggies faced Arkansas in the first game of the tournament. Dale Barry, the top pitcher on the Aggie staff, started the game and pitched his usual best. The Aggies won the game 4-0 and it was Barry's second shutout of the year against Arkansas and his third overall. Baylor shelled UT in their opening game so Baylor and A&M would be playing for the championship in a two out of three series.

Darryl Fry won his eleventh game of the year with a 8-0 shutout over the Bears in the first game. The Aggies pounded Baylor for 15 hits and all the Bears could manage was two. The second game was much closer and the Aggies needed to rally for five runs in the eighth inning to give Pat Werning his seventh win of the year and the Aggies the Tournament championship.

Quick Exit in NCAA Tourney

The Aggies had little time to celebrate their Southwest Conference Baseball title before heading to Tallahassee, Florida to participate in the South II Region of the NCAA Tournament. This was the toughest region in the tournament. It not only had seventh ranked South Florida, the Aggies opponent in game one, but also the Florida State Seminoles, the number one team in the country, playing on their home turf.

Staff ace Dale Barry pitched in the first game and it was not unlike the other eleven games he started. The South Florida Bulls were held to just seven hits, while the Aggies pounded out seventeen in the 10-2 romp. The Aggies were now looking ahead to the top team in the country.

Florida State also had the number one fans in the country, featuring a packed house in virtually every game of the season. The fans were roudy in Tallahassee. Both the Aggies and the Seminoles had fourteen hits in the game, but Florida St. put them to better use. Darryl Fry's record dropped to 11-5 as the Aggies fell 12-9.

In the Aggie's final game of the season, South Florida avenged the earlier loss with a 10-7 win to send the Aggies home waitin' til next year.

Scanlin & Barry make All-American

The 1986 Baseball season was a memorable one because it featured both a solid team effort and the remarkable play of two All-Americans, the first time the team had two since 1978. The team play was emphasized by the ten team records the Aggies set and the unanimous decision to make Head Coach Mark Johnson Southwest Conference Coach of the Year. A&M set team records in, to name a few: victories, hits, doubles, total bases, stolen bases, and putouts.

All-American Mike Scanlin became the owner of thirteen new school records including most homeruns in a season (20) and career homeruns (43). His combination of power and speed enabled him to be the first Aggie ever to hit 20 homeruns and steal 20 bases in a season. Scanlin also earned career records in games played, runs, RBI's, total bases and stolen bases. Scanlin and Ever Magallanes were the co-winners of the Marion Push MVP award.

Dale Barry's 11-1 record made him an easy choice for the All-America team. He completed nine of his thirteen starts, the third most in Aggie history, and threw three shutouts. Barry also had a fine ERA of 2.03 and threw 87 strikeouts in 115 innings. Barry was voted the C.E. "Pat" Olsen Outstanding Pitcher by his teammates.

SOFTBALL

Is This Team Ever Bad?

The upset loss in the regionals last year kept the Texas A&M Softball team from making it to the College World Series finals for the fourth time in a row. The Aggies had been to the CWS for six straight years, and the #2 team in the country losing that early was a big disappointment. The return of eleven letter winners, seven starters and three All-Americans should make it easy for Head Coach Bob Brock's team to get back to the NCAA finals where they belong.

The Aggies started very strong in 1986 and only gave up one run in their first nine games. The Aggies played a very tough schedule and faced about every top team in the country. They never lost more than two games in a row and usually overpowered every team they played. The Aggies finished the regular season with a 36-11 record. Since Brock arrived at A&M in 1980, his teams have compiled a remarkable 308-75 record.

Team Falls in NCAA Final Game

Due to the great success of the 1986 Texas A&M Softball team, the Aggies again hosted one of the regional tournaments with the hopes of returning to the College World Series in Omaha. They learned last year not to take their opening round opponents lightly, and this year they didn't.

The Aggies won both of their regional games against the Kansas Jayhawks and didn't let Kansas score a point. Their first opponent in the CWS was Creighton, a team that had beaten the Aggies 3-1 earlier in the season. The team avenged the loss by shutting out Creighton for their eighth win in a row without giving up a point. Indiana was their next game and again, they pitched a shut out to head to the finals.

Cal-Fullerton and A&M had split a pair of 1-0 games earlier in the season so the teams were quite familiar with each other. In a showdown between the nations #1 and #2 teams, the topped rank team was the victor and Cal-Fullerton won both games 3-0.

The Aggies were proud of their 41-13 record and their fourth trip to the NCAA finals. A large number of returning players should give the Aggies the ability to win one more game and bring the National Championship back to College Station.

INTRAMURALS

Intramurals play a big part in student life at Texas A&M. The intramural department at Texas A&M is one of the top ten intramural programs in the country, offering over 66 activities to over 40,000 students, faculty, staff and the University community.

The intramural department is directed by Dennis Corrington with the help of ten professional staff members. It is jointly under the student service department and the physical education department.

According to public relations director P.J. Nadeau, "Intramurals is one way that all students can become involved, regardless of skill and ability."

Extramurals Sports

There are 29 extramural sports clubs at Texas A&M that offer instruction and competition for its members. Any student may join a club, regardless of their ability, provided they have an interest in developing the skills that are necessary to participate. The teams represent Texas A&M around the state and country and compete against other clubs, universities and NCAA teams.

ARCHERY

The purpose of the Texas A&M Target Archers shall be to encourage and enable its members to improve their shooting ability and provide opportunities for a team to represent Texas A&M University at local, regional, and national archery tournaments.

BADMINTON

The Texas A&M Badminton Club promoted interest in the game of badminton and provided competition with other badminton teams. Several out-of-town tournaments were attended by the club, which has male and female divisions, including a club tournament providing campus-wide competition during the fall and spring semesters.

BOWLING

To many of us, bowling may be a pastime that draws a smirk when a friend suggests we spend a Saturday night at the alleys, but it is something that most of us will admit to enjoying. However, the Bowling club takes theirs a bit more serious. The club this year competed in tournaments in Dallas, St. Louis, and Las Vegas in hopes of gaining an invitation to the nationals. President Mike Shoemaker says the club field men's and women's teams compete against schools such as North Texas State, West Texas State, and Southwest Texas among others. Bowlers can earn scholarship money as prizes for tournament victories.

FENCING

Practicing once a week and sponsoring a fencing tournament were two ways in which the Texas A&M Fencing Club accomplished their goal of enjoyment and encouragement for the sport of fencing. International competition is available for olympic-caliber fencers, as well as instruction and novice tournaments for beginners.

BOXING

The Texas A&M Boxing Club provides opportunities for anyone interested in the sport of boxing to learn the basic skills or develop existing ones. The club, in its fourth year, competed in the state regional ABF meet and the national regional meet. The team is a member of the National Collegiate Boxing Association and also participated in Sig Ep Fight Night.

CYCLING

The Texas A&M Cycling team provided novice and expert riders the opportunity to participate in training rides, team races, and time trials. They also competed in Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas in races sanctioned by the United States Cycling Federation. The participants are amateurs although money and/or merchandise is awarded for prize.

FIELD HOCKEY

An increasing number of men's, women's and coed teams in the area provided exciting competition for all members of the Texas A&M Field Hockey Team. The club is open to men and women interested in participating in the sport. Veteran club members provided instruction to those wishing to learn how to play and the team competed in Denver and Mexico City.

HANDBALL

Open to men and women, the Texas A&M Handball Club enables handball enthusiasts the opportunity for both formal and informal competition. Club members competed against each other as well as other tournaments including the National Intercollegiate Handball Championships. The club also hosted two tournaments, the Fall and Spring Aggieland Classics.

HANDICAPPED ATHLETES

The Association of Handicapped Athletes is designed to promote and encourage wheelchair sports for the handicapped. The organization was originally founded as a wheelchair basketball team but has expanded to include club sports such as archery, racquetball, and track and field. The team also provides social and recreational activities for handicapped students.

GYMNASTICS

The gymnastics club has approximately 25 active members representing men's and women's teams. Spokesperson Monique Cox says one of the group's goals is to promote gymnastics for recreation and competition. Although agility is essential, a person need not have gymnastics experience to join, as the club policy welcomes beginners.

Practices are held daily during the week in a permanently reserved gym on the Reed Building's third floor. The men's team won the state title in 1985 and will sponsor the state tournament here in 1986.

JUDO

The Texas A&M Judo Club sponsors workouts twice a week in which members compete with each other to fine tune their skills for tournaments. Bobby Perez, the club president, says there are about 20 active members and the club is generally competition-based. Members attend five to six tournaments yearly and some compete additionally on their own.

The sport is the martial arts equivalent of wrestling and requires a combination of strength and technique. The club sponsors professional instructors from time to time, and has been successful, sending several members to the nationals in recent years.

POLO

The Texas A&M Polo Club is for both men and women who are interested in refining the basic skills of the game of Polo. The Texas A&M team competes against polo clubs such as the McFadden Ranch Club in Victoria and the Retama Polo Club in San Antonio. Intrasquad games provide experience for the young players and enables them to advance to the intercollegiate level. The club maintains a string of horses, therefore individuals need not own a horse to be a member.

ICE HOCKEY

The Texas A&M Ice Hockey Team offers competitive intercollegiate ice hockey to its members. The team is a member of the Southwest Collegiate Hockey Association with all home games and practices held in Houston. The four-year-old club contains several members from the northern part of the country and is a growing part of the movement to make hockey popular in Texas.

LACROSSE

The Texas A&M Lacrosse team competes in the College Division of the Southwest Lacross Association. Non-conference games are also scheduled against teams in the club division. The team welcomes beginners to their full practices which are essential in preparing the team for the spring conference schedule.

RACQUETBALL

The Texas A&M Racquetball Club is a CoRec sports club offering a full range of opportunities for the competitive of recreational player. The club provides information and assistance to those interested in attending tournaments throughout the state and country. Tryouts for the TAMU intercollegiate team are also held through the club.

ROADRUNNERS

The purpose of the Texas A&M Radrunners Club is to promote running for fitness and recreation. The club sponsors several fun runs and races and also takes trips to out-of-town races. The club is primarily a recreational running group, and is concerned with providing an opportunity for all runners to better enjoy the sport.

RODEO

The Texas Aggie Rodeo Association provides rodeo contestants an opportunity to compete in National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association events. Contestants from the Southern Region of the NIRA compete in bareback, saddlebronc, bull riding, tiedown calf roping, team roping, goal tying and barrel racing.

MEN'S RUGBY

The Texas A&M Men's Rugby Team has continued their reign as the number one collegiate rugby team in the state. After another fine season, the Aggies won their thirteenth state title in the Texas Collegiate Championship in Austin. The Rugby team competes with other universities and club teams from Texas and surrounding states in the Texas Rugby Union.

WOMEN'S RUGBY

Even though the rules of the sport are somewhat complex, the women's rugby team used a majority of first-year players and still managed a national ranking in the top ten. Player-coach Jeannie Von Stultz attributes most of this success to a great sense of team unity, and this unity can be attributed to challenging workouts four days a week.

The club was founded by, believe it, a Playboy bunny some ten years ago, and has grown to a nationally respected, competition-based squad. The team welcomes tryouts, but set in shape because when these girls play, they mean it.

TAE KWON DO

The TAMU Tae Quon Do Club is Texas A&M's most popular Martial Arts club. Stressing strong Tae Quon Do kicking and punching techniques, the club places emphasis on practical self-defense, winning sport karate, and the development of the physical, mental, and social self. The club offers beginning and advanced classes for men and women.

SKEET & TRAP

The Texas A&M University Skeet and trap club serves faculty, staff, and students by providing instruction to newcomers in safety, range etiquette, and in the fundamentals of skeet and trap shooting, as well as competition in the collegiate, state, and national levels.

SOCCER

The Texas A&M Men's Soccer Club provides students with an opportunity for intercollegiate soccer competition. Once an NCAA Varsity sport, the soccer club competes against other schools in the Southwest Conference, but membership is open to players of any skill level.

MEN'S VOLLEYBALL

The purpose of the Texas A&M Volleyball team is to promote interest in the competitive power of the sport as sanctioned by the United States Volleyball Association. The team trains its members through regularly scheduled workouts, enters in tournaments and league match play, and hosts two tournaments annually.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

Competitive Volleyball games in a non-NCAA level is the purpose behind the Texas A&M Women's Volleyball Club. The team competed as members of the United States Volleyball Association against other club teams throughout the state. Although some university teams were played, most of the competition came from independent teams.

ULTIMATE FRISBEE

The Texas A&M Ultimate Frisbee Club fields 2 competitive teams which participate in tournaments throughout the South. On both men's and women's teams, emphasis is placed on instruction, fellowship, and competition. Fall and Spring competition include Ultimate Players Association qualifying tournaments which lead to the annual national tournament.

WATER SKIING

The Texas A&M Water Ski Club is dedicated to the promotion of safe waterskiing at all levels. The club offers instruction to A&M students at all skill levels and represents Texas A&M in intercollegiate competition. Practices are held at the Texas Instruments Lake on F.M. 60.

WEIGHTLIFTING

The Texas A&M Weightlifting Club has as its objective the promotion of weight training as a sport and leisure activity. The club maintains a weight room in G. Rollie White Coliseum which enables its 600 members to work out. The Club also sponsors powerlifting and body building teams whose members compete across the state as well as in the National Championships.

WRESTLING

The Texas A&M Wrestling Team practices throughout the year in Room 260 of G. Rollie White. Dedicated to providing Texas A&M with a quality wrestling program and promoting the sport throughout the state, the club offers instruction to any students willing to work. Individual weight classes range from 118 pounds to heavyweights.

WATER POLO

The Texas A&M Water Polo Club competes in the fall semester in games and tournaments around the state. Open to men and women, the club practices in Cain pool and offers coaching and instruction to the inexperienced beginner and top competition with collegiate and club teams for the advanced players.

RHA COUNCIL

The Residence Hall Association, formed in 1972, serves as the general governing body for the residence halls and acts as a liaison between the students in the dormitories and the university. The T.A.M.U. R.H.A. is one of the most outstanding residence hall associations in the country, so recognized for its programming and the services it provides for the students. The R.H.A. promotes leadership development within the halls, promotes physical improvements in the halls, and encourages and assists in the development of an educational and social environment in the halls. The R.H.A. is the largest organization on campus, for it actually includes all on-campus residents in its membership.

R.H.A. is responsible for the organization and execution of such events as RHalloween, Casino Night, Almost Anything Goes, a Parent's Weekend coffee, and the new president's retreat.

Halloween

Halloween isn't just for kids anymore. This was obvious when, on Halloween night, the campus was filled with costumed trick-or-treaters, all out looking for candy, kisses, perhaps a little alcohol (although it was forbidden), and just an all-around good time. The Residence Hall Association was responsible for the planning of the RHalloween activities.

On Halloween night, following costume contests at the Commons and Sbis dining halls, residents of men's dorms trick-or-treated at the women's dorms from 7:00 to 8:00. Then it was the women's turn to trick-or-treat in the men's dorms for an hour. At 9:00 until 12:00, there was a R.H.A.-sponsored Halloween dance behind Hart Hall. The RHalloween activities are an annual event that most campus residents look forward to.

CASINO

Beginning as a dorm mixer, Casino became so successful and popular among the students that the RHA council took over and made it into one of their largest annual fundraising event. The annual event which is held in the MSC each year took the theme of "Caribbean Dreams" for this years Casino '86. The event netted $10,000.

Purchased tickets were exchanged for $3,000 in fake money. This money was used to place bets in games, including blackjack, craps, baccarat, wheel of fortune, beat the dealer, and horse races. Players spent their winnings on prizes at auctions held throughout the evening. The prizes donated by merchants from the Bryan-College Station area included diamonds for senior rings, a weekend at the Holiday Inn, jewelry, and various gift certificates.

The Ross Volunteer Company is composed of junior and senior cadets who have demonstrated outstanding qualities of leadership, military bearing and dedication to both the Corps of Cadets and to the University. The purpose of the Ross Volunteers is to provide an example within the Corps and to officially represent Texas A&M. As the official Honor Guard for the governor of Texas, the Ross Volunteers also represent the state of Texas throughout the nation. This honor company is also responsible for the twenty-one gun salute at Silver Taps and Aggie Muster.

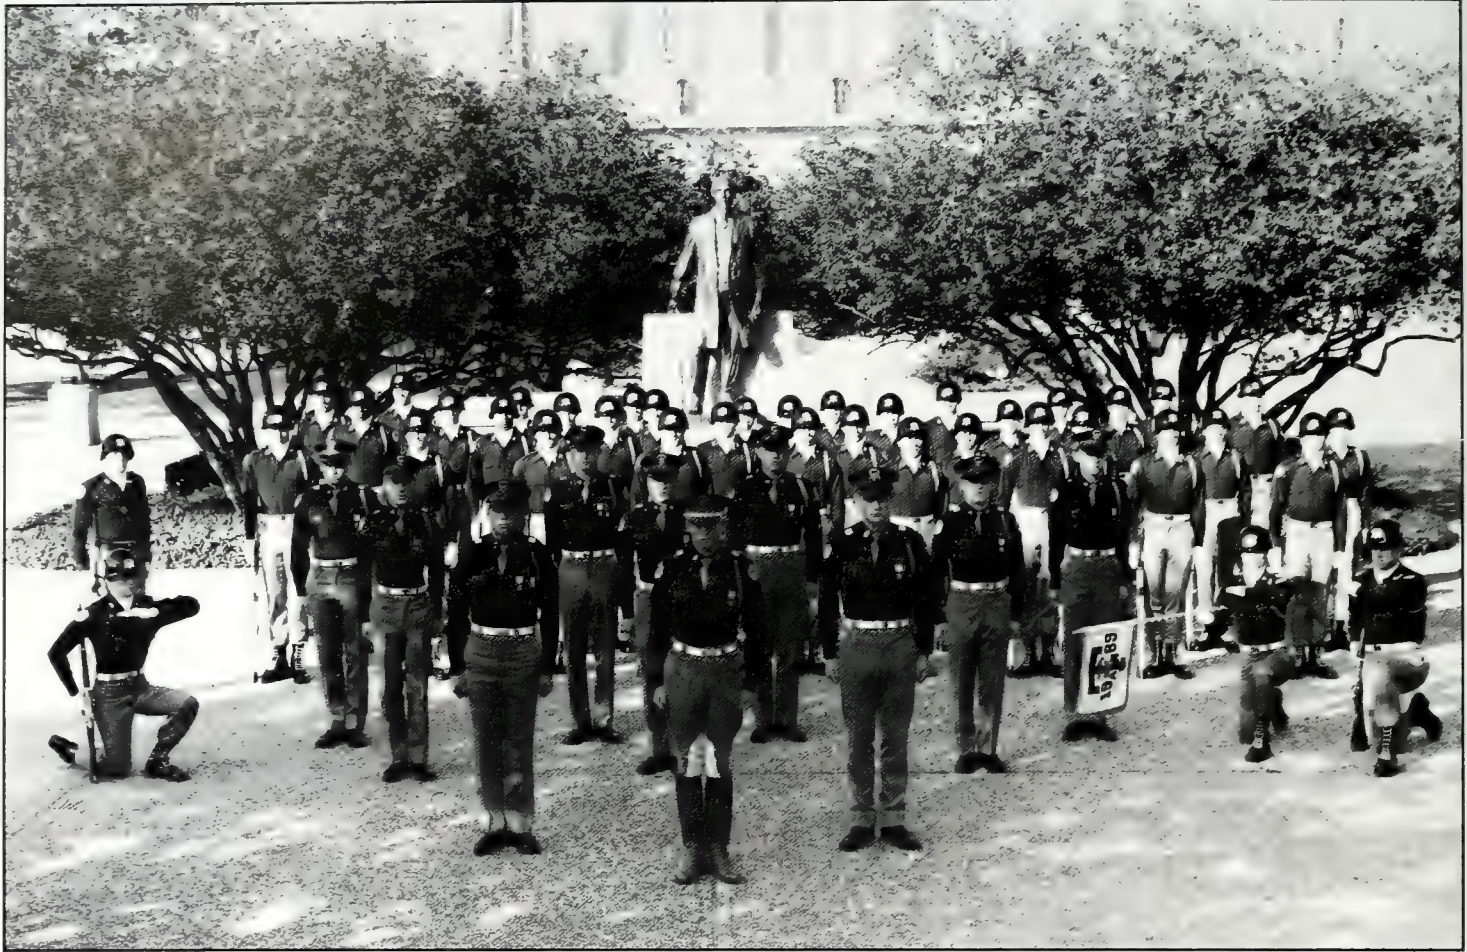

The namesake from which the Ross Volunteers was founded is Lawrence Sullivan Ross, who epitomizes a soldier, statesman and a knightly gentleman. Each and every Ross Volunteer strives to uphold this title.

Ross Volunteer Company

Fish Drill Team

The general purpose of the Fish Drill Team is to give the fish in the Corps an organization to which they can exclusively belong and take part in. It is for fish who want something more out of the Corps and who want to earn something that is based on their merits and hard work. The objective of the advisor staff is to make the Fish Drill Team the best drill team unit possible and have the team win the Texas state championship.

Some of the activities that the Fish Drill Team takes part in are: a short performance at the last home football game, drill competitions at Texas A&M, the University of Texas, and Mardi Gras, and a Parents' Day performance on Kyle Field.

Parsons' Mounted Cavalry

The Parsons' Mounted Cavalry is the ceremonial mounted unit of the Corps, and is composed of junior and senior cadets who are responsible for the care and upkeep of the horses used by the outfit. A select group of sophomores also assists in the care of the animals.

The Cavalry has been a traditional part of Texas A&M pageantry since the unit was revived in 1972. The unit participants in many events including rodeos around the state, Galveston Mardi Gras and the San Antonio Battle of Flowers. The Cavalry also was invited to the presidential inaugural parade which was cancelled due to subzero temperatures — after the Cavalry had already arrived in Washington.

The Cavalry is proud of its purpose as stated by its constitution, "... to demonstrate pride in the heritage and tradition of Texas A&M."

Matt Davis, Jane Bergin, Carl White, John Spessard, John Newton, Major Gaughan, John McMahon.

The Blackhat platoon is a highly motivated organization composed of 30 "Recondo" qualified seniors in the Corps of Cadets. To become Recondo qualified, a senior must have successfully completed Army ROTC Advanced Camp at Ft. Riley, Kansas and be proficient in physical fitness, M16A1 riflery, land navigation, tactical application lanes, mountaineering and water skills.

Once a month, the Blackhats assist the officers by administering Army physical readiness test to all Army ROTC cadets. Primarily, the Blackhats are utilized by teaching all Army ROTC advanced camp bound cadets the fundamentals of leadership as well as practical field exercises. Their responsibility for training evolves both in the classroom and at field training sites.

The Blackhat motto is: "Never settle for minimum standards. Always excel above and beyond our call to duty; and our performance as a future officer of the United States Army shall be no other than OUTSTANDING."

Guidon Bearer — Billy Dorsey, First Sergeant — Alan Moore, Platoon Commander — John McMahon, Platoon Sergeant — Randy Vickers, Second Squad Leader — Steve Solka, Third Squad Leader — John Wegenhoft.

Cadet Courts

Cadet Court is divided into two groups, A and B. Court A consists of members from the Wing and Regiment. Court B members are chosen from the Brigade and Band.

These courts review cases of discipline concerning fellow cadets. The facts are studied, and then recommendations of punishment are made to the Commandant. To alleviate any biases, Court A examines cases involving cadets of the Brigade and Band, whereas Court B hears those cases involving the Wing and Regiment.

March to the Brazos

On April 1, 1977 the old tradition of March to the Brazos was reinstated. In years past cadets participated in a forced march to the Brazos River to keep them from playing April Fool's pranks on campus. Today, the march is held on the Saturday of the week of April 1. The cadet acquires pledges of money from other students and people for the march. This money is given to the March of Dimes.

Bloody Cross

Used as a means of motivation, Bloody Cross offered the Corps a way to have a little friendly competition among its members.

The Wing, Brigade, Regiment and Band held competitions to determine which outfit would represent each branch. In April the finals produced the champion of the Bloody Cross; the Wing.

Bloody Cross required each outfit to run six full quadrangles within the corps dorms. In order for the time to qualify the outfit must have completed the run with only a minimum number of cadets falling out. The only prize for the winner was the title of Bloody Cross champion.

Commissioning

On May 10, a total of 174 seniors received their commissions as officers in the U.S. Armed Services. Lieutenant General Crosbie E. Saint, U.S. Army, served as Commissioning officer.

For many of these officers, commissioning marks the culmination of a college career and allows them to officially begin serving their obligation to a chosen military branch. However, some of the officers will return to Texas A&M to finish their degrees or pursue graduate work.

Final Review

The occasion of the year for which each cadet eagerly awaits is Final Review; a ceremony that occurs on the day of spring commissioning. Two military reviews are held. In the first, the cadets march in the position held during the past school year, under the command of those who have held positions of leadership and responsibility. In the second review, each cadet makes his first appearance in the role he will assume the next school year, passing in review for the graduating class. It is the only time the Corps marches without a "Fish" class.

The Mud Lot as many will always remember it, a free ride lost to free enterprise.

From Mud to Money The Mud Lot Gets a Face Lift

Finding a place to park your car while attending class was almost a tougher problem than passing the next calculus exam. Some students found one solution by parking in the ever-so-popular "mud lot," located on Nagle Street across from the J.R. Blocker building on campus. Students could park in this empty field of dirt and craters free of tickets or fines. The only risks were getting stuck in a swamp of mud when it rained or returning to find that your car had been hit.

The month of October marked the beginning of a change. Former student Skipper Harris leased the land to develop a parking lot and charged students a dollar a day for parking.

"I always worried about the safety of my car before they graveled the lot, but it is cheaper for me to get up early and find a parking spot on campus than to pay a dollar a day to park in the mud lot," senior Chris L'Roy said.

Senior Kelly Lathem continued, "I'm glad that they had the idea to gravel over the lot, but there is no way I would pay a dollar a day."

Although many students refused to pay the high price for parking in the mud lot, the lot averaged about 225 students per day for the first semester it was open. Harris also implemented a semester parking pass with comparable rates to campus parking.

"I park there when I can't find any places to park on campus," commented senior Traci Partridge. "It sure beats having to pay a towing fee for parking illegally on campus."

Women in the Band

The battle for a change

After a five-year court battle, an Aggie tradition was broken and a new one started. The 90-year-old, all-male Fightin' Texas Aggie Band, admitted the first women into their ranks in the fall of '85.

These three women were Jennifer Peeler, Carol Rockwell and Andrea Abat. The women who made their membership in the band possible was Melanie Zentgraff.

Zentgraff filed a sex discrimination lawsuit against Texas A&M in 1979 because women were not allowed into the all-male organizations on campus.

The Texas Aggie Band Association filed petitions to stop the U.S. Justice Department from settling in Zentgraff's favor, but in January 1985 a court order was issued forcing the band and other organizations on campus not to discriminate against women.

Many Aggies, alumni and students were opposed to allowing women into the traditionally all-male band while many were in favor of it. The controversy became heated at times, but after the three women were admitted into the band, it didn't seem so bad.

Peeler and Rockwell dropped out for reasons of their own but Abat made it through her freshman year and said in interviews with the press that she was determined to make it through her senior year.

Shuttle Challenger

Seven Astronauts Remembered

Flags flew at half-mast for a week after the tragedy in memory of the seven who were killed.

On Jan. 29, 1986 seven American astronauts lost their lives when the shuttle Challenger exploded 74 seconds after take off from the Cape Canaveral, Fla. launch site.

Among the astronauts on board was Christa McAuliffe, 37, th first private citizen in space, a social studies teacher from Concord, N.H.

The commander of the flight, Francis 'Dick' Scobee, 46, carried a medalion from the Texas A&M College of Education on an earlier flight.

The other crew members were pilot Michael J. Smith, 40; Judith Resnik, 36; Ronald I. McNair, 35; Ellison S. Onizuka, 39; and satellite engineer Gregory B. Jarvis, 41.

Secret Friends Romance in Dorm Exchanges

Receiving a present from an unknown member of the opposite sex can be exciting and romantic. Dorm exchanges provide students with these experiences throughout the year.

In these exchanges resident advisers of different dorms agree to have their residents participate in an exchange. The whole thing is done in secrecy so that no one but the two R.A.s know who's been assigned to whom.

Then the exchanging begins. Women give their secret partner everything from candy to hard liquor, and men give everything from candy to hard liquor to skimpy underwear.

The exchanges are scheduled around important events such as bonfire, Christmas, Valentine's Day and Easter. On a specified night the two groups get together, and the individuals who have been exchanging gifts finally meet face to face.

Sue Krenek, a former resident of Krueger Hall, participated in a Christmas exchange.

"It was interesting because he was really creative," she said. "I'd end up getting really unique things.

"For instance, we exchanged gifts several times and one time he gave me a G-string with a Christmas tree on it."

Krenek also said it's a good way to meet people.

"We (the residents of the wing) didn't know the people who were our buddies before the exchange but afterwards when we saw them we'd stop and talk," she said.

Apartheid

A growing concern at A&M

Apartheid was a word little known to students at Texas A&M a year ago. But since then a student group, Students Against Apartheid, raised awareness of the word that meant segregation of races and political and economic discrimination against non-European groups in the Republic of South Africa. Other universities had these organizations long before A&M did, but for such a conservative school, A&M wasn't far behind.

During the past school year the group made some progress toward awareness at A&M with two protest marches, one on Anti-Apartheid Day in October and another on national Divestment Day in April and two fund-raising concerts at Dr. G's.

By raising awareness of what was happening in South Africa, the group hoped the A&M Board of Regents would divest the $2.95 million the University had invested in companies doing business with South Africa.

The Board of Regents said it wasn't their job to make decisions on moral issues while the student group said apartheid was wrong and they didn't want their University to support companies that supported it.

The new way to register

Longer lines but a shorter wait

Registration had a new look this semester. After years of students registering by dropping off a card packet at the Pavilion and returning the next day to pick up a copy of their schedule, students arrived to find long lines and computers instead of drop off points. The Student Information Management System (SIMS) was being put to the test.

The new system allowed students to register at a computer and know immediately if there was room in the class. Then the student's space in the class was allotted and a copy of his or her schedule was printed. The student could also pay fees before leaving the building.

This new system replaced the old one which had been used at Texas A&M since 1969. When the old system was purchased by the University, it was a state of the art registration system. But as the University grew it became necessary to make some modifications on it to handle the larger capacity.

In 1984 the system could barely handle the number of students needing to register and was close to crashing, said Don Carter, associate registrar.

At this point the University began to shop for a new system and purchased the SIMS. The lines at the Pavilion will be normal with about an hour wait but students can hardly complain about the wait when it's not necessary to return for a copy of their schedule or wait to be billed for fees.

SAUSALITO FIRE

Students Lose Homes

Fire destroyed 13 apartments in the Sausalito complex on Harvey Road and left about 50 Texas A&M students homeless Sunday, April 6. The fire began at about 7 p.m. and was declared "under control" at 8:48 p.m.

No students were injured in the fire but one fireman was taken to the hospital to be treated for smoke inhalation and heat exhaustion.

Six College Station fire trucks and over 35 firemen fought the fire while Bryan firemen were on standby.

Students rushed to remove their belongings but the fire spread quickly and much was lost. The complex's clubhouse was used to collect donations of clothing and the Red Cross set up a shelter at the Aggieland Inn to collect cash and clothing for the homeless residents.

The burned-out residents were housed in the Texian Inn for the night and then relocated at other apartment complexes in College Station that are also owned by the owner of Sausalito.

TOP: Often called the Flag Room for its many flags, the MSC living room provides space for students to study or socialize between classes. Its also used as a meeting place when parents come to town or you just don't know where someone lives. ABOVE: A student takes advantage of the comfortable sofas and atmosphere of the MSC Living Room to get his studying done.

CAMPUS CENTER

A Memorial in Action

On the mention of the Memorial Student Center, most people immediately think of all the activity that surrounds it. Undoubtedly, the MSC is one of the most active places at Texas A&M.

Ironically, it also houses a few of the most peaceful places on campus. The MSC living room and the Browning Library are two of these havens.

The living room often has been called the "living room of campus." Conveniently located in the middle of the excitement, it provides a place to relax and escape the hurried routine of campus life. Many people spend time in the living room reading The Battalion and other newspapers, while others study, sleep and visit with friends. A baby grand piano is also available for individuals and group use. Occasionally, the Singing Cadets are among the groups who hold open practices there. Throughout the year, the living room is used by campus groups for special programs.

The Browning Library is located on the second floor on the MSC in room 223 and offers a wide variety of activities. Unlike the living room, the library provides a quiet atmosphere to study and relax. A large selection of current periodicals, including 25 newspapers and 85 magazines, as well as a special section of science fiction books, is at the disposal of the patrons. The library features a wide variety of music selections available to anyone with an I.D. Patrons can select a cassette or album which is played over one of nine channels. The library offers the use of two pianos and an organ and has a collection of sheet music available. Two television sets that include both set programming and first come, first served programming remain on throughout the day. Aggies can check out board games at the front desk and use the game room in the library for group play.

Bus Stop Snacks

The new place on the block

What was once a shabby bus stop shelter was transformed this year into a high volume snack bar.

It was located on the corner of Ross and Ireland streets and soon became a favorite stop for students going to and coming from class.

Food services catered the snack bar with a variety of foods ranging from cheeseburgers to egg rolls and other foods similar to other snack bars on campus. Breakfast was served from 7:30 to 9:30 in the morning.

The snack bar officially opened October 14, 1985 with a day of festivities including gifts, balloons, and free t-shirts.

Late Night Snacks Students Cure The Munchies

Suddenly, it hits. The urge that changes your path home, swerves cars off Texas Ave. and University Ave. and can reduce some people to counting the spare change rolling around in the floor to the car. The munchies have got you again.

The ravenous craving for the perfect snack strikes typically after the bars close in a never-fail pattern to keep sleepy-eyed counter help hopping early into the morning.

You can just drive through, scan the people inside in the booths, and cruise the line of the drive through until you decide if you know those people behind you or not. Isn't he in your chemistry lab?

Sometimes you can satisfy the hunger pangs with just a quick burger or fries or shake and/or all of the above. Other times, it has to be mexican food with the works piled on. Taco Bell, Archies' Hamburgers and Pepe's found a booming crowd in the late night hours. Ice cream counters like Sticky Chin's, Charlie's, Swensons and Thomas Sweet's also scooped a little deeper for the sugar craving crowd late at night. You just gotta' try it with Butterfingers and Heathbars crunched up in there.

Pizza deliveries topped the phone lists of several students. Domino's runners look on the dinner hour as break time compared to the after midnight orders. It didn't really matter what kind you ordered, just don't get black olives and be sure to get two Cokes.

Other restaurants found the crowd came pouring in to eat and socialize. The Kettle restaurants and any other place serving breakfast drew a large munch bunch over coffee into the wee morning hours. Sometimes there were actually people STUDYING in there. Drinking coffee and cracking books for real. Maybe next weekend we could do something different and try that. Who are we kidding? If we eat breakfast now do we start with lunch when we wake up? When we wake up . . .

THE AGGIE RING

A Worldwide Tradition

You can spot the gleam . . . from London, England to Snook, Texas. Aggies . . . they can be recognized anywhere in the world by their distinctive class ring. Since 1894 the Aggie ring has had the same design with only a few minor changes.

The rings are source of pride for students and a reward for hours of hard work put in during their years at A&M. The rings can only be ordered through the school and a student must have completed 92 hours, (senior status) with at least 30 of those hours taken at A&M. The rings can only be ordered at certain times of the year and come back from the manufacture, L.G. Balfour Co., together. The arrival of the rings is evident by many smiling senior faces walking around campus with their hand displayed for everyone to see.

Traditionally, the ring is worn by the undergraduate with the class number toward him. The ring is turned around so that it no longer faces the wearer — it faces the world at the annual Ring Dance held during Senior Weekend.

The design of the class ring is deep in symbolism. The shield on the top symbolizes protection of the good reputation of the alma mater while the 13 stripes refer to the original 13 states and symbolize the intense patriotism of the graduates and undergraduates at A&M. The five stars within the shield refer to the development of the student in mind or intellect, body, spiritual attainment, emotional poise, and integrity of character. The easle is a symbol of agility and power.

One side of the ring with its ancient cannon, saber, and rifle symbolizes that the men of Texas fought for their land and are determined to defend their homeland. The savor stands for valor and confidence while the rifle and cannon stands for preparedness and defense. The crossed flags of the United States and Texas recognize the dual allegiance to nation and state.

The other side of the ring symbolizes the seal of the State of Texas authorized by the constitution in 1845. The five-pointed star is encircled with a wreath of olive leaves to symbolize achievement and a desire for peace and the live-oak leaves symbolizing the strength to fight. At the bottom they are joined together to show the necessity of having both these traits in accomplishing one's ambition to serve.

Senior Diana Stokes exemplified many of the feelings students feel when they slide the long awaited class ring on their finger. "I've worked hard for this ring, but its sure been worth it!"

The legal drinking age

An adjustment for college students

On Labor Day, 1986 a change will be made in the lives of many students at Texas A&M. The legal drinking age in the state of Texas will increase from 19 years to 21 years.

Since most college freshmen are 18 or 19, their activities will have to be very different from the college freshmen of two years ago who used their new found freedom of college to drink alcohol like fish.

Maybe this new law isn't going to stop underaged students from getting alcohol if they really want it, but it won't allow them to drink it in public places.

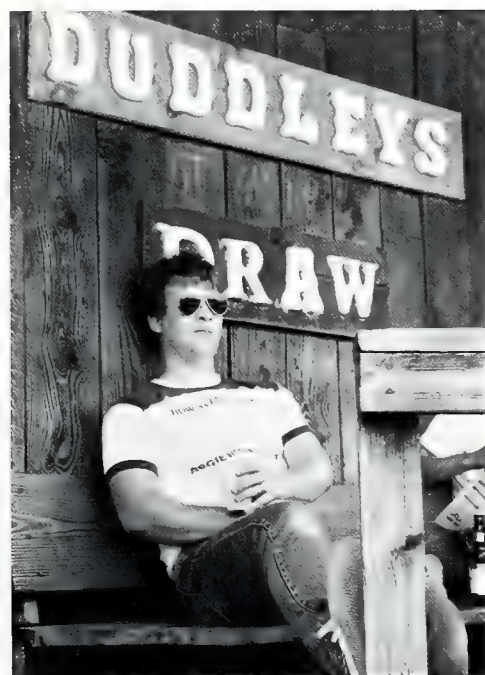

Don Ganter, owner of the Dixie Chicken (the establishment where many students have drowned the pressures of school in pitchers of beer), said he will allow underaged students inside for a fee, but they will not be allowed to drink.

He realizes that underaged students can have their friends buy beer at the counter and bring it to a table. But he said that if they're caught he will follow the instructions of the police even if it means having them arrested.

Besides the change in the lives of college students, establishments like the Dixie Chicken are going to have to make some changes. In the past, beer and alcohol has attracted the college crowd. Now to attract the same crowd, there will have to be another attraction.

"We're gonna just kinda roll with the punch," Ganter said, "and spruce up our food selection."

Special Thanks:

Most of the Aggieland staff and photographers — for being responsible and fun to work with.

The Delmar Company — for being so helpful
Frank Myers, Sales Representative;

Sherry Breneman, Customer Service

Bill Hughes — for helping pick the right pictures and then getting them to me

Melissa Muecke — for listening to me rant and rave and for the support from the beginning

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Kahanek — for their love and support through school and this book

Student Body — for understanding that we are only students who make mistakes and can't please everyone — though we did try David C. Martin — a very special thanks for helping me finish this book and for keeping me sane.

Editor's Note

This yearbook was totally compiled by student staff members of Texas A&M. The 1986 Aggieland was published by The Delmar Company of Charlotte, North Carolina. Over 18,000 copies of this 832 page publication were sold.

Specifications:

Body Copy — 10 point Souvenir

Captions and Page Folios: 8 point Souvenir

This book was dedicated to the eternal spirit of all A&M students.
